Garner Greets the President in Washington

way Near Penitentiary.

An 18-year-old Atlanta girl was killed and five companions were injured, one critically, last night when the car in which they were riding overturned three times on the new Macon highway, two miles below the federal penitentiary.

The wreck was caused when the driver jammed on brakes to avoid a head-on collision as he attempted to pass a parked truck, DeKalb Patrolmen C. M. Cloud and C. B. Hensler said.

Miss Evelyn Schroeder, of 985 Fern street, adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Schroeder, of 330 McDonough boulevard, died 10 minutes after being taken to Grady hospital, Cloud said. She received head and internal injuries.

Miss Clara Lee Myers, 17, Miss Schroeder's cousin, also of 985 Fern street, was admitted to Grady hospital with severe head and scalp lacerations. Her condition was reported critical.

Albert J. Major, 27, the driver, of 439 Crew street, S. E., a furnace worker, was dismissed after treatment for hip and back injuries.

Three Others Treated.
Also treated for slight abrasions were Mr. and Mrs. James J. Burks, of 439 Crew street, S. E., and Frank Medlin, 22, a truck driver, of a Cooper street address.

Major told DeKalb officers the party was en route to visit friends several miles further down the new Macon highway and had intended then to go to Grady hospital to visit a friend there recovering from a recent operation.

Police said Miss Schroeder had been living recently with her aunt.

Capper Would Empower Congress
To Regulate Divorce and Marriage

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(P)—Senator Capper, Republican, Kansas, proposed today "uniform regulation of marriage and divorce" through a constitutional amendment that would give congress this power.

His proposal was referred to the senate committee on judiciary. It would also standardize "the legitimation of children and the care and custody of children affected by annulment of marriage or by divorce."

Capper also introduced a bill which would require a two-week application for license to marry, prohibit licenses to insane or those affected with certain diseases, and require parental consent for marriage of young women from 16 to 18 years and young men from 18 to 21 years.

The measure would require that

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(P)—Congress voted itself today some $222,000 for traveling expenses to and from the special session—at 20 cents per mile per member. It passed the house, 327 to 37.

House Republicans had some caustic comment to voice about the action—including an imputation that it amounted to an appropriation for Christmas trips home, which in fact would not actually be made. In the senate the measure passed without comment.

Simplify Taxes.

Otherwise, the day was devoted to wrangling over the farm bill, a house subcommittee decision to make two simplifications in the much-criticized capital gains and losses tax, and the approval by the house labor committee of a revised wage and hour bill eliminating the proposed administrative board.

The last action was taken a few hours before President Roosevelt's return from a southern vacation, and left the membership wondering whether he would take any affirmative action to oppose the change.

The mileage bill was the second measure to be passed at the special session—the first was a $12,000 authorization to pay the salaries of congressional page boys.

Aid for Taxpayers.
The house subcommittee on taxes approved tentatively today a change in the capital gains tax. Under it taxpayers would be permitted to charge off in full the losses suffered on property used in trade or business. "This is a considerable break for the taxpayer," said Roswell Magill, undersecretary of the Treasury.

A second proposition, which was approved, would eliminate the present three-year statute of limitations upon claims for deductions on account of such losses.

In voting against the administration-proposed five-man board to administer the wage-hour bill, the labor committee acquiesced to the wishes of the American Federation of Labor citing the adverse decisions it has received from the National Labor Relations Board in its row with the CIO.

Instead of the five-man board, the committee approved a one-man administration in the labor departments. The change was obviously a popular one in the house.

Boy Legal Heir.

VIENNA, Dec. 6.—(P)—Admitting paternity of his comely bride's three-year-old son, Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg today opened proceedings to make the boy his legal heir.

He petitioned the Swiss birth registry office to re-register the child, born at Lucerne, in the name of von Starhemberg.

Ludwig Draxler, former Austrian minister of finance, representing the wealthy and politically prominent Prince, said he expected no serious complications and that under Austrian law the child became legitimate at the moment of marriage.

The boy's name was registered as Heinrich Rudiger Gregor, Draxler said, and was born to the Viennese actress, Nora Gregor, October 4, 1934. She became Princess von Starhemberg last Thursday shortly after the Prince's first marriage was annulled.

Whereabouts of the youngster were kept secret because of threats said to have been made by political enemies to kidnap him should his father re-enter Austrian politics. A friend of the Prince admitted detectives were guarding the boy.

The newlyweds today were at the Prince's old Heimwehr headquarters near the American legation here. The actress has annulled

Charges of Politics on Highways Are Made;
Mayor Will Resume
Cyclorama Fund Fight.

Immediate action on a proposal to create 10 one-way streets for downtown traffic was sidestepped yesterday by city council and the matter was sent back to the police committee for further study.

The action followed several attempts to kill the proposal outright, to create a special council committee, to consider it and to defer action until a report could be brought from the 1938 police body.

In recommitting the matter, council definitely decided not to take action before the Christmas holiday season, but instructed the 1937 committee to bring it again to the council floor at the first meeting in 1938, January 3, the last meeting at which the 1937 committee will function.

City Asks $10,000.

Another important action of the council was passage of a resolution urging the federal government "to abide by its agreement to pay into the city treasury 5 percent of the gross receipts from Techwood and University low cost housing projects" and instructing B. Graham West, city comptroller, to take steps to obtain payment of about $10,000 which it is claimed is now past due.

Failure of the budget committee to approve a $37,185 fund for dramatization of the cyclorama Battle of Atlanta and to sanction expenditure of $25,000 as the city's share for the immediate purchase of the John A. White golf course in West End precluded council action on those matters.

Mayor Hartsfield, however, indicated he will reopen his fight for the cyclorama fund immediately. The mayor did not attend the budget committee meeting before council's session yesterday.

Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, finance committee chairman; Comptroller West, and Councilmen Frank Wilson and M. C. (Mac) Bolen, other members of the budget body, were present. The commission deferred action.

Politics Charged.

Councilman Bolen threw the charge of politics in consideration of the one-way streets when he took the floor to demand that the majority report of the police committee, favoring immediate creation of the traffic arteries, be approved.

"The police committee is not at-

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—In the legislative battle between Representative Robert Ramspeck, of Georgia, and Senator Kenneth McKellar, of Tennessee, chairman of their respective committees on the civil service, as between the merit or spoils system in the designation of postmasters, two of the country's leading daily newspapers have come out editorially in favor of the Georgian's merit claims.

The conservative Republican Washington Post, in a lead editorial this morning, charged Senator McKellar's report on his committee's amendment to the law relating to the appointment of postmasters, was "one of the most brazen assaults on the merit system in recent years" and at the same time commended Representative Ramspeck for his bill. Ramspeck's bill has passed the house. It places all postmasters under civil service.

"Historic Gain."

Last Saturday the equally conservative Christian Science Monitor, published in Boston, said editorially:

"Passage of the Ramspeck measure would mark a historic gain for the ideal of good government and a major break in the jam that has been impeding civil service reform."

74 Debs Are Presented at Cotillon
Where Wally Began Her Career

BALTIMORE, Dec. 6.—(P)—The famed Bachelors' Cotillon, second oldest social fixture in the United States, presented 74 orchid-decked debutantes tonight in the glamorous setting where Wallis Windsor, "came out" in 1914 to start a career climaxed by marriage to the Duke of Windsor.

Stepped in a lavender-and-old-lace tradition, the Cotillon began in 1796, and the gilt candelabra and brocade hangings which have greeted guests since the War Between the States gave the stiffly formal function an old-fashioned motif.

From outside Baltimore came 28 girls to make their entry into society. The rest, including Ann Lord Marvel, a distant cousin of the Duchess of Windsor, live in

RIVERS EXPECTED

SOMETIME TODAY

Senate President John B. Spivey Expresses Be-

$300 Household and Kitchen Furniture Ex-

to Committee by House.

The general assembly yesterday moved two steps closer to providing funds asked by Governor Rivers to meet the current appropriation bill when the senate passed, 34 to 12, the bill doubling the beer tax and the house adopted, 132 to 39, the treasury stabilization fund bill.

The beer bill, already passed by the house, is now ready for the Governor's signature. He is expected to sign it some time today.

The stabilization measure immediately was transmitted to the senate, where it will be given a first reading and referred to a committee this morning. Committee action is expected in a day or two and it is considered likely that the bill will come up for final action this week. As passed by the house the stabilization bill, which puts 10 per cent of all allocated revenues in a revolving fund, exempts the approximate $3,000,000 paid the counties annually for roads and a similar amount paid the counties in the school equalization fund.

Governor Rivers received news of the two major victories, one in the house and the other in the senate, without comment.

Passage of the beer bill came after a heated debate which took up practically the entire session of the senate. The vote also came after opponents had failed doggedly in an effort to postpone consideration until next Monday. The vote to delay action was lost, 13 to 30.

Senate President John B. Spivey concurred in the previously expressed belief of Speaker Roy V. Harris, of the house, that the doubled beer tax will add $1,250,000 annually to the revenue from the beverage, all of which is allocated to the school department. Speaker Harris estimated that the general treasury will net $1,050,000 annually from the amended treasury stabilization bill. The amendments exempting the county road fund and the school equalization fund were passed after Speaker Harris had asked that they be accepted unanimously. Representative Sutton, of Wilkes county, the house floor leader, was absent during the day on account of illness and Har-

ONE-WAY STREETS PLAN IS DELAYED

tempting to steamroll this thing or to play politics with it," Bolen said in urging adoption of the report, which Captain Jack Malcolm, head of the traffic bureau, recommended.

"There has been some suggestion from Alderman Reynolds that this council needs more time to study the proposition. (Reynolds had moved that a list of the streets involved be furnished every council member and that the entire matter go to the 1938 police committee.) Practically every member of this council has been here several years. They should know these streets, and they should not ask more time for study. The public has been rather lenient with them already. They should act now."

"I anticipated this would be a political football. I think Police Chief Hornsby would have approved the program if politics had not been injected."

"Coercion" Mentioned.
"Is council to assume from that remark that Chief Hornsby is under a species of coercion?" Gilliam asked.

"Let's leave the chief out of this," Bolen retorted. "He is not a politician and should not be involved in this discussion."

Reynolds contended he had been a member of council for 16 years and that he wanted to know and wanted council to know exactly what "we are doing."

At the suggestion of Councilman J. Allen Couch, Reynolds amended his motion to refer the program back to the 1938 committee so that the present group would bring it back to council at its last meeting.

A motion by Councilman Frank Wilson to table the entire matter was defeated by a vote of 4 for to 12 against.

Alderman Roy E. Callaway lost a move to send the proposal to Raymond W. Torres, engineer-secretary of the city planning commission. He wanted Torres to consider specifically establishment of Spring street and Peachtree and Whitehall streets as one-way arteries and the elimination of left-hand turns for vehicular traffic in the congested downtown areas.

PARKING RESTRICTIONS GIVEN APPROVAL
Controversy over parking in the vicinity of Gordon and Lee streets was believed settled, at least temporarily, by council yesterday through enactment of a series of new ordinances.

In addition to the adjustment at Lee and Gordon several other parking restrictions were imposed. Among the measures approved were:

One hour parking on both sides of Lee street from Zachary to York streets.

One hour parking on the north side of Gordon street from West Whitehall to Lee streets.

No parking day or night on the south side of Gordon from West Whitehall to Lee streets.

No parking at all hours on the east side of Dunn street.

One hour parking on the west side of Dunn street from Zachary to Gordon streets.

No parking on the east side of Piedmont avenue from Fourteenth street to The Prado.

No parking on the north side of North avenue from Courtland to Juniper.

No parking on the west side of South Boulevard beginning at 190 Boulevard, S. E., and extending to Fenwick street.

No parking on the west side of Butler street from Houston to Auburn avenue.

Councilman Couch liked by the large number of parking restrictions, lost what he said was an attempt to "paint the entire city yellow and make it non-parking except in front of the city hall from 1 p. m. to 5 p. m. each day."

"We are painting this town yellow as fast as we can," Couch said. "The time has come to call a halt. I'm going to fight all the special favors that come to this council, but I know they will be voted."

$10,500 REQUESTED FOR UNDERPASS WORK
Councilman Cecil Hester and Alderman G. Dan Bridges yesterday sent to the 1938 finance committee a request that $10,500 be provided to obtain a right-of-way for widening the Boulevard underpass beneath the Georgia railroad. The measure already has been approved by the public works committee of council. Federal aid will be sought for the project.

CONDEMNATION OKAYED FOR SEWER PROGRAM
Council yesterday took two important steps toward completion of the metropolitan district sewer program.

Condemnation proceedings for 10 strips of property needed to complete the right-of-way on the Utoy creek line were authorized. An agreement was ratified whereby DeKalb county will pay 12-1/2 per cent of the cost of operation of disposal units for the district and one-half of the cost of repairs to the lines lying outside the city limits and in DeKalb county.

In return for the payment, DeKalb citizens will have the privilege of tapping the sewer lines and all sewage running into city plants will be disposed of under the district arrangement.

$80,800 EARMARKED IN PENSIONER'S SUIT
A fund of $80,800.74 was set up tentatively by council and added to the city deficit in contemplation of a decision against the city in a suit by Albert Trotzler, fire department pensioner.

Trotzler claims he was retired under an old pension act and that the city had no right to cut his pension. Although city executives are confident the case will be decided in their favor, they are anticipating the worst and are taking steps to provide sufficient funds to pay other pensioners who would have the same claim if the municipality should not be sustained.

FAIR STREET REPAVING RECEIVES SETBACK
The projected widening and repaving of Fair street from Capitol avenue to Whitehall street received a temporary setback in council yesterday.

Council voted to approve the closing of Whitehall place, extending one short block from Whitehall to Fair streets, which was a condition precedent to obtaining a portion of the right-of-way for the widening.

Councilmen White and Couch, however, served notice they will seek reconsideration at the December 20 meeting of council, thus forestalling final sanction.

HOUSING TAX POWER SOUGHT BY COUNCIL
City tax jurisdiction was sought over any future low-cost housing developments yesterday.

By unanimous vote, city council asked the Fulton and DeKalb delegations to amend any housing authority acts to protect the municipality in that respect. The measure was sponsored by Gilliam and White.

WAY IS CLEARED TO RETAIN AUDITOR
Council yesterday removed all restrictions which would prevent it from selecting a city auditor as many times as it wishes. A previously approved ordinance prohibited election of any one auditor for more than two years in succession. This portion of the law was repealed, thus clearing the way for designation of Ham Eidsen & Company for the third consecutive year.

SIX HOLIDAYS DESIGNATED LEGAL
Christmas, Thanksgiving, Armistice Day, the Fourth of July, New Year's Day and Labor Day yesterday were designated as legal holidays for the municipality. Employees are to be given a holiday on that day or they will get another day when their services can be spared, under action.

COUNCIL RETAINS LOSE AS AUDITORIAL AIDE
Council yesterday provided $750 to retain Robert G. Lose, structural engineer and a member of the city planning commission, as a technical liaison officer between architects, a board of city engineers and WPA executives in repairing the municipal auditorium.

Council's action followed an announcement by Robert L. MacDougall, Georgia WPA projects director, that actual work on the building can be begun by Thursday.

On motion of Councilman John A. White, council voted to ask for bids for renovating Taft Hall and the front of the structure. The bids are returnable at the December meeting of council.

COMPANY TO RESURFACE SECTION OF PEACHTREE
The Georgia Power Company will resurface that portion of Peachtree street between trolley lines beginning at the Pershing Point apartments and extending to Brookwood station.

Preston S. Arkwright, company president, informed council of the decision letter filed in yesterday's council meeting.

WOMAN GRANTED BEER LICENSE
Mrs. Louise Harbin, wife of Mercer Harbin, yesterday was granted a permit to sell beer and wine at 89 Marietta street, as the police committee of council reversed its former unfavorable action and recommended the permit.

Permit of George Sorensen to sell beer and wine at the Ritz, 633 Peachtree street, was revoked on recommendation of the police body. The charge was that liquor caches had been revealed there.

Stockade Loses Prisoner When Patrol Has Flat
The city stockade lost a prisoner yesterday when a city patrol wagon had a flat tire.

Driver W. R. Harmon reported to Chief Hornsby he was taking 15 prisoners to the stockade when a tire blew out at McDonough road and Route 42 highway. Three of the prisoners were riding up front with the driver, he said.

When he left the patrol wagon to summon a wrecker, a prisoner listed as L. H. Cawthorne, 31, of 339 Woodward avenue, S. E., escaped, the driver said.

Co-eds Organize Against Unchivalrous Male Students

Members of the newly-organized "Ugly Club" auxiliary at Oglethorpe University are living up to their name. Left to right are Misses Odette Guthrie, Betty Benefield, Grace Rushin, Mary Josey and Hazel Oates, members of the club. The name of the organization, however, does not mean that the girls lay no claim to pulchritude. They organized to retaliate against the boys' club which rules that the boys relax on the "old southern chivalry" and refuse to carry the girls' books or let them use their meal tickets.

The same members show how attractive they can be. But they're determined to "beat the boys at their own game." Their rules are that members must get everything they can. They never refuse a cigarette. If they don't want it they take it for a sister member. With only 10 members in comparison with 20 in the boys' club they still think they "have the upper hand." "We can think of more mean things to do," they said. "Though it's all in fun."

AIR CHIEF FINDS NEED OF MORE PLANE FIELDS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(P)—Major General Oscar Westover, chief of the army air corps, told an airport conference today that a minimum of 45 landing fields would be necessary in war time to handle the army's air fleet in any one of the nine corps areas.

Invited to address the conference by J. Monroe Johnson, assistant secretary of commerce, Westover said only 30 of the nation's airports meet the maximum requirements set by the army.

turn of Author Fri

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., (P)—The strange disappearance of Arthur Fried, 32-year-old New York business executive, from his home in this smart West suburb Saturday night was known today with reports he had been kidnapped and was being held for high ransom.

The reports, which fix the sum at $100,000, were quickly by members of the family. They expressed the belief that he had been "drugged" or that he might have quarreled with a member of the family.

In spite of these denials, Detective Edward J. and a half dozen other detectives were investigating Fried's disappearance. Reports persisted that of the Federal Bureau of Investigation had been called from New York.

Fried is manager of the office of the Colonial Se Stone Co., of which George Pope, the Italian publisher president and a director.

The New York Post said was under subpoena to test an investigation by Special District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey himself said Fried never been a witness before grand jury, a courtroom witness or in my office in any case.

Ruler, Prince Center of Romantic Rumors

King Leopold Suffering From Cold, Keeps Secluded in Welbeck Abbey

Lady Anne Cavendish-Bentinck Drives Through Snow for Yule Fete; Diplomatic Sources Doubt She's Romantically Linked With Belgian Monarch.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—(P)—King Leopold of the Belgians, suffering from a cold, remained in the seclusion of Welbeck abbey today while Lady Anne Cavendish-Bentinck, with whom his name was linked romantically, drove through a snowstorm to open the Christmas shopping week at Worksop. Usually well-informed diplomatic sources said they doubted Leopold figured in any English romance although his brother, Prince Charles, might.

Charles, two years younger than the 36-year-old widower King, suddenly arrived in England yesterday. In 1932 he was reported engaged to Lady Anne, granddaughter of the Duke of Portland, at whose Nottinghamshire estate near Worksop Leopold and his mother, Queen Elizabeth, are visiting.

Diplomatic sources said it was likely Leopold had come to England merely as an attentive son accompanying his mother on a visit to the Portlands, who were close friends of her husband, the late King Albert of the Belgians.

Secretaries of both the King and the Queen mother denied his engagement to Lady Anne was about to be announced.

Lady Anne, 21-year-old daughter of the Marquess of Titchfield, when asked about the rumor, answered: "I am sorry I can say nothing at all."

FEDERAL AGENT SHOT TRAILING EXTORTIONER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(P)—Federal Bureau of Investigation headquarters here reported tonight one of its agents was shot and wounded at Independence, Mo., in an attempt to trap an alleged extortionist.

Federal agents, FBI headquarters said, accompanied Howard Boone Jacobs to a spot designated in a note received by him. Following instructions, he dropped a bundle supposed to contain $600.

A man, believed to have been the note writer, opened fire and Federal Agent H. A. Snow fell. The man escaped.

ATTITUDE ON F. D. R. DECLARED VEERING

'Independence' of Congress Cited as Evidence by John D. M. Hamilton.

WILMINGTON, Del., Dec. 6.—(P)—John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican national committee, declared today that the "independence" of congress is evidence of the reversal of the public attitude on President Roosevelt's programs.

Hamilton was accompanied by C. B. Goodspeed, treasurer of the Republican national committee, to assist former United States Senator Daniel O. Hastings, national committeeman from Delaware, in the selection of a successor to MacMillan Hoopes, who recently was in charge of raising funds in Delaware for the national committee.

"In the campaign of 1936, the arguments we had to make due to a great many circumstances, were more or less theoretical," Hamilton said.

"Now, the actual conditions are here. They are no longer theoretical. People are beginning to understand the inevitable conclusions of the program of President Roosevelt."

HERTY'S RESEARCH MAY BE CURTAILED

Chemical Foundation Unable To Supply Funds.

SAVANNAH, Dec. 6.—(P)—A committee of Georgians considered means today to prevent closing after December 31 of the Savannah pulp and paper laboratory, directed by Dr. Charles H. Herty.

Dr. Herty announced that since funds from the Chemical Foundation and its late president, Francis P. Garvan, ceased recently, the laboratory has had very little financial support.

Howard C. Foss, chairman of the industrial committee of Savannah, appointed a committee composed of Robert W. Groves, Mayor Robert M. Hitch, John J. Cornell and Walter R. McDonald, of Augusta, to seek aid.

At the laboratory, which has been in operation for six years, Dr. Herty developed a process for manufacturing newsprint from slash pine and several other commercial uses for Georgia products.

Dr. Herty explained the Chemical Foundation was unable to continue support after war-time patents it held expired.

ALABAMA URGES STATE TO APPROPRIATE FUNDS

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 6.—(P)—Hubert F. Lee, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the South, said here today "it would be a catastrophe" to permit abandonment of a pulp and paper research laboratory being operated at Savannah by Dr. Charles H. Herty.

Lee said he was writing Governor Rivers, of Georgia, suggesting that the state appropriate funds "to carry on the work, particularly regarding development of newsprint paper from southern pine."

His crossing from Natal was accomplished in 11 hours 13 minutes.

BANK ASSOCIATION OFFICIAL PREDICTS BUSINESS UPTURN

Gilbert T. Stephenson, of Delaware, Here for 'Trust Research Week.'

With the new year, business is due for a general increase throughout the nation, Gilbert T. Stephenson, director of trust research for the American Bankers' Association and one of the founders of the association's graduate school of banking at Syracuse, N. Y., said here last night.

He said he based his beliefs on the widespread optimistic temper of Wilmington, Del., banking circles and of people he has contacted on his swing southward.

"I believe the business recession being talked at present is only temporary," he said.

Feeling of Encouragement.
"In Delaware and in other states I have traveled lately, there is a definite feeling of encouragement—a feeling that the present recession is only temporary and that the new year will see a great improvement in business in general," he said.

Mr. Stephenson said he found the same expressions of optimism recently while in England.

"Prospects are brighter everywhere, and there is no war talk going on in England," he said. "They can't seem to understand why Americans insist on knowing about the so-called war scare."

Arriving in Atlanta from Wilmington yesterday afternoon for "Trust Research Week," being observed here this week, Mr. Stephenson stepped off the train into subfreezing weather.

"I must have left the south in Wilmington, for as I came nearer Georgia it got colder," he remarked, adding that it was "quite warm" in Wilmington.

Interested in Farming.
A North Carolinian by birth, Mr. Stephenson divides his time now between his North Carolina farm and his trust research headquarters in Wilmington. Keenly interested in farming and problems facing farmers, he has confidence that congress is going to aid agriculture.

"Congress is honor bound to help the farmer. Some form of legislation designed to help the farmer is certain to come. That's the least of my worries," he said.

Mr. Stephenson recently returned from a four-month study of the trust systems of England, France, Germany, Denmark, Norway and Sweden.

Series of Speeches.
He will begin a series of speeches here this afternoon when he will address members of the Atlanta chapter of the American Institute of Banking at the First National Bank. He will talk to members of the Atlanta Life Insurance and Trust Council at 6:30 o'clock tonight at the Capital City Club. Highlight of the speaking program will be tomorrow when he will be honored as guest of the Chamber of Commerce. He will speak on "The Value of Trust Institutions to Atlanta."

Mr. Stephenson will conclude "Trust Research Week" in Atlanta Friday afternoon when he will address officers and directors of Atlanta banks at the Piedmont Driving Club. Before returning to Wilmington, he will go to Athens to speak to law students of the Lumpkin Law School of the University of Georgia.

4 GET GANG TERMS FOR 'BUG' ACTIVITY
One Sentence Suspended on Charge of 'Frame.'
Four lottery violators were given straight chain-gang sentences yesterday in Fulton criminal court as Judge Jesse M. Wood continued his recently announced no-fine policy of dealing with convicted "bug" men.

At the same time, S. D. Vaughan and Jesse Anderson, investigators from the solicitor's office, arrested Henry Barber, alleged pick-up man, on Mitchell street near Davis street. Barber, who gave his address as Austell, Ga., was placed under $1,000 bond.

Eugene Riggins, writer, and Abe Moses, pick-up man, received six months each and Bishop Jones was sentenced to four months after a jury had found him guilty. The first two pleaded guilty.

Bennie Rhodes, alleged to be a writer, was sentenced to serve 12 months, but received a suspended sentence when evidence was presented which tended to show he had been "framed." Rhodes contended that the lottery books found in his store had been "planted."

All defendants sentenced by Judge Wood were negroes.

FIRE DESTROYS BUILDING.
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Dec. 6. (AP)—Fire destroyed the interior of the W. H. Lester three-story brick building here this afternoon, causing damage estimated at $125,000 and bringing out every available piece of fire apparatus from all of the six city companies.

HELP 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES
To Flush out Acids and Other Poisons Waste
Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 2 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney weakness, may be the beginning of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Only Two Youths In Bunion Derby Make Full Route

Tired, cold and footsore, the University of the South's "bunion derbyists" reached here at about 9 o'clock yesterday morning, seven hours late in their attempt to hike in 70 hours the 200 miles from Seawane to Atlanta.

The hikers, David Rose and Charles Robinson, both of Nashville, Tenn., found the going extremely rough mainly because of the cold. "The rain didn't help either," they said, as they recounted their adventure.

The youths left Seawane at about 4 o'clock Friday afternoon. Two companions, Lee Bellford, of Savannah, and Dick Kirchhoffer, of Mobile, Ala., started with them, but dropped out due to minor casualties. Bellford developed foot trouble at Jasper, Tenn., and a stone bruise halted Kirchhoffer at Chattanooga.

The others plugged on, however, bound for the honor of a friend, Bishop H. J. Mikell. After a brief visit with Bishop and Mrs. Mikell, the youths, students at the university, entrained for the campus.

7 ATTORNEYS CHOSEN TO COMPLAINT BOARD
Seven Atlanta members of the bar were named yesterday as a committee on complaints under superior court rule No. 16 by the judges of Fulton superior court.

The committee will investigate all applicants for admission to the bar after they have been certified by the bar examiners.

Those named were Morris Brandon Sr., chairman; Joseph Haas, Ralph Quillian, Emerson Gardner, Frank Carter, Allan Watkins and Herman Heyman.

TRIAL OF WEATHERS SLATED FOR TODAY
Four Enter Pleas of Guilty and Are Sentenced in U. S. Court in Rome.

ROME, Dec. 6.—Judge Charles B. Kennamer, of Montgomery, presiding in federal court here, today postponed until tomorrow the trial of Roy Weathers and his wife, Virgie Weathers, charged with the slaying of James G. Revels in the Chickamauga park reservation.

Four defendants later entered guilty pleas and were sentenced, as follows:

Merritt Warren, Atlanta, conspiracy to violate the internal revenue law, a year and a day in federal penitentiary; A. E. Williamson, Rome, embezzlement, 15-month prison sentence suspended, conditional upon repayment of $799 to bonding company; Guy Davis, Rome, violation of internal revenue law, 18 months in prison and fine of $500; and Jesse Scarborough, violation of national motor vehicle theft act, four years in the penitentiary.

Scarboro, alias Mack Green, arrested during an attempted holdup at Shannon, was identified as a fugitive from the Floyd county chain gang, where he served two years of a 20-year sentence before escaping last June.

DAVIES HOME FROM RUSSIA.
NEW YORK, Dec. 6. (AP)—Joseph E. Davies, United States ambassador to Russia, arrived from Europe today to spend the Christmas holidays with his wife, who returned several weeks ago. He said his trip had no political significance.

CHRISTIAN COUNCIL ELECTS STAUFFER
Names Pastor Successor to Dr. W. A. Shelton as President.

Dr. C. R. Stauffer, pastor of the First Christian church, was elected president of the Christian Council of Atlanta for the coming year at a meeting yesterday. He succeeds Dr. W. A. Shelton, who served three years as president.

Other officers chosen were Dr. Lester Rumble, pastor of St. Mark Methodist church, and George B. Hoyt, a layman of the First Presbyterian church, vice presidents, and James Morton, a layman of North Avenue Presbyterian church, treasurer.

Members of the program committee elected were the Rev. F. C. Talmage, superintendent of home missions, Atlanta presbytery; the Rev. A. Lee Hale, pastor of Peachtree Road Methodist church; Dr. Ellis A. Fuller, pastor of First Baptist church, and M. Graham cultural distress, Paul W.

Clark, a layman of First Presbyterian church.

Chapman, dean of the College of

Sonja Henie Made Knight of St. Olaf

OSLO, Norway, Dec. 6.—(AP)—
Sonja Henie, queen of the ice, today became Norway's youngest knight. King Haakon made her a Knight of Saint Olaf. She is not the first woman to be admitted to that order.

The insignia will be presented to the 25-year-old skater and motion picture star by a Norwegian consul, probably at San Francisco or Los Angeles.

"Unless we can increase foreign outlets and at the same time discover new uses (for cotton), it is inevitable that we face a drastic reorganization of farming in the south. Any such reorganization ... means a lower income together with the inability to employ all persons now living on farms in the cotton belt."

In Section 402, the bill provides for a sum not to exceed $10,000-000, for each fiscal year, to be used for the establishment and maintenance of laboratories for research into new uses and extended markets for farm products.
The bill requires, however, that this sum be matched by $250,000 in state money.

"Any state that appropriated $250,000 to co-operate with the federal government will make an excellent investment," continued Chapman. "The interest on this sum at 6 per cent is only $15,000 a year, and the annual cost to the federal government (paid out in pay rolls) will not be less than $250,000."

Citing the advantages of Georgia as a location for the southern research laboratory, Chapman concluded by expressing the hope,
... that Georgia will co-operate with the federal government in the effort to increase outlets for our products. If the funds are appropriated and we should not secure the laboratory, the effort will cost nothing."

HARRISON FUNERAL TO BE HELD TODAY

Mr. Harrison, who served several terms on the city council, was chairman of the board for the establishment of the Battle Hill sanatorium, built while he was in council.

From 1938 until approximately one year ago, he was secretary to the board of Fulton county registrars. He has since been connected with a wholesale grocery

U. S. FORESTRY SERVICE IMPERILED

Under the federal reorganization proposal which will come before congress for approval either at the present special session or at the regular term to open in January, there is a very evident danger that the United States Forestry Service, now one of the most efficiently operated branches of government service, will be seriously crippled and, possibly, converted into a trough for the payment of political debts through job appointments.

Secretary Ickes, of the Department of the Interior, is reported as anxious to take over the Forestry Service into his department, by executive order. Under the conservation measure as now drawn this could easily be done.

The Forestry Service now operates as a division of the Department of Agriculture, where it rightfully belongs. Any attempt to place it under other direction could hardly fail to injure its opportunities for service in conservation and upbuilding of the forest resources of the nation.

The Forestry Service now supervises 167,000,000 acres of national forests, 270,000,000 acres of commercially-owned timberlands and an even greater area of farm forests. Should the service be transferred to the Department of Interior—which, under the bill would be renamed the Department of Conservation—it would be impossible to include in the transfer the supervision of the farm forests. This activity would have to remain in the Department of Agriculture, thus creating two bureaus in place of one and hampering the work by duplication of effort.

Possibly worse in its potentialities is the provision in the bill which would make "policy forming" positions appointive. The Forestry Service has been developed solely by career men, holding their positions on a basis of merit alone. If their offices became appointive it would mean that these jobs would be added to the "political plums" distributed as party patronage. The result on the efficiency of the service can be easily imagined.

Conditions in some divisions of the Department of the Interior have been scathingly criticized in the past. It is unthinkable that the Forestry Service should be subjected to such influences.

The forests of the nation are, in effect, an agricultural crop. They constitute a natural resource and a national safeguard against soil erosion, "dust bowls" and disastrous floods. Properly operated, they provide an annual cash crop just as corn, cotton, livestock or any other agricultural product.

If the federal reorganization bill is to result in departmental changes of jurisdiction, it should not, under any circumstances, affect the Forestry Service. That activity belongs, properly, under the Department of Agriculture. It has operated with a record of efficiency and achievement surpassed by no other governmental activity.

The proposed transfer was before a congressional committee at the last session. At that time 15 agricultural and conservation bodies vigorously opposed the suggestion. The house then declined to pass the bill.

It is to be hoped that, if the reorganization bill eventually passes, it will be amended to prevent this threat to the Forestry Service.

THE CITY AUDITORIUM

Beginning of the work to make the city auditorium "the safest public structure in the entire country," in the words of Mayor Harrisfield, brings to a satisfactory conclusion the extended debates which have centered on that building ever since a portion of the roof collapsed during a storm.

The city and the Works Progress Administration of the federal government have spent large sums on modernizing the building. As it stands today it is one of the finest structures of its kind in the country. All remaining to be done is to reinforce the steel roof supports to make it, beyond argument, 100 per cent safe.

The starting of this final repair project should mean that the auditorium will be ready for grand opera in April, thus permitting the projected resumption of annual Metropolitan Opera seasons in Atlanta. The opera company is reported ready and eager to give a week of performances here and little difficulty is anticipated in raising the required guarantee.

The only condition to be fulfilled is completion of the auditorium repairs. These should be done by April 1, which will leave comfortable margin before the opening of the proposed opera season on April 18.

Directors of an Amsterdam zoo may be forced to sell its stock at auction, as creditors are howling and it unsettles the wolves.

A western schoolmarm gave so much time to pacifist preaching she was suspended. Blessed are the peacemakers, but not on the city's time.

Scotland, says a trade item, is buying more saxophones than bagpipes. This could be the long-awaited acid test for our new neutrality law.

A note of weakening was detected in the latest of the apologies from Japan. She practically confessed that she remembered the incident.

REPAIRS BADLY NEEDED

The program of street repairs and other improvements advocated by Councilman George B. Lyle, chairman of the public works committee, is urgently needed. While some of the items listed may not be so pressing as others, there are many important Atlanta thoroughfares in serious need of paving repair.

Chairman Lyle proposes that the city appropriation for this work be doubled, an increase from $30,000 to $60,000 per annum and that assistance be sought from federal, state and Fulton and DeKalb county governments. Cooperation of these four authorities would make possible a vast improvement in conditions.

The complete plan includes 22 different projects, all of which are admittedly urgent. Some, however, can better be postponed than others and, if the entire program cannot be arranged at this time, it would be wise to undertake the most pressing needs at once and postpone others.

Replacement of the city asphalt plant, recently destroyed by fire, seems to be the logical avenue of first approach to the problem. The operation of such a plant makes the cost of street repairs much lower than is possible without it and rudimentary good business dictates acquisition of a new asphalt plant as the first step in the program.

It is only necessary to drive a few blocks over Atlanta's streets to realize they are, in many instances, in woeful condition. Holes and rough surfaces are frequently found. The taxpayers as a whole would quickly profit, if repairs were made, in reduced wear on automobile tires and lowered depreciation of automobiles.

Another important consideration is the adverse publicity carried away by visitors to the city. There is nothing that more emphatically impresses the modernity and prosperity of a city upon visitors than good streets, smoothly paved and permitting an easy, free flow of traffic.

NAVY LACK OF AUXILIARIES

That the effectiveness of the United States navy is seriously impaired by the lack of a modern American merchant marine, ships which could be immediately converted into auxiliary navy vessels and transports, is forcefully pointed out in a statement by N. M. Hubbard Jr., president of the Navy League of the United States.

Admiral Leahy, chief of naval operations, has stated "an American merchant marine manned by Americans is as much a part of the national defense as the guns of our battle-ships."

Mr. Hubbard suggests that not less than 30 tankers and cargo ships, built upon specifications drawn up by the Navy Department, should be immediately constructed and put into cargo service, under government subsidy and manned by officers and crews of the naval reserve. These vessels would then be available in any time of need as the auxiliary vessels which would keep the navy mobile and ready to repel attack from any quarter of the world.

At the same time he urges similar methods of operation of several of the larger and faster American passenger liners now in intercoastal service through the Panama canal.

Principal blame for the serious situation of the American merchant marine at this time is attributed to labor troubles with seamen. It is stated that this condition has become so acute that neither passengers nor shippers are willing to patronize vessels under the American flag which are in constant danger of "sit-down" strikes at sea or in port and are further imperiled by the lack of crew discipline and loss of control by their commanders.

"It is clear," says Mr. Hubbard, "that until the command is restored to the masters, no ships can operate reliably."

It is deplorable that such a situation should have arisen, but if it results in the operation, as suggested, of tankers, cargo ships and passenger liners by naval reserve personnel, it will not only provide badly needed auxiliary vessels for the navy in time of emergency, but will also increase the value of the naval reserve, both as to number and experience of personnel.

Editorial of the Day

"THREE L'S" OF LIFE
(From the Jacksonville Florida Times-Union.)

Six figures in America qualify, according to a formula of contented living advanced by Dr. William Moulton Marston, former director of the psychological laboratory at Harvard, who is now a consulting psychologist.

The eminent psychologist lists them as follows: Henry Ford, Mrs. Margaret Sanger, President Roosevelt, Thomas E. Dewey, Helen Hayes, and Mayor La Guardia.

Naming them in the order of their contribution to humanity, Dr. Marston said they were living what he considered contented lives because they had found the pursuit which they want to follow more than any other in the world.

At last, there is a man who departs from the sordid American conception of success far enough to advance the opinion that success in life is dependent upon something more important than the material things.

Success, he believes, springs from happiness, which in turn is dependent on the three L's of life: "Live, love and laugh." Apparently a facile formula of life, the theory sounds like something out of a textbook of economics. Production is based on the three factors of land, labor and capital, or some other economic maxim.

Analyzed, however, the three L's of life will be found more difficult to attain than successful combination of the three factors of production.

More elusive than any goal in life, the intangible something called happiness, which Dr. Marston declares contributes everything to success in life, has been the subject for the pen of thousands of gifted writers in practically every literary field prior to his day. That the "living, loving and laughing" will come naturally when happiness is achieved, they have all realized.

The "rub" seems to come, however, in the manner of approaching that happiness. All authorities, except the "inspirational writers" of "hokuspokus" whom Dr. Marston debunks, are agreed that happiness cannot be made the object of direct pursuit. As the seer said, "the longest way around, is the shortest way across." Maeterlinck's "Blue Bird" teaches that lesson.

"To be successful in the worldly sense, you don't have to get up in the morning with that 'getter' look in the eye and all the hokuspokus that inspirational writers have been telling us about for years," Dr. Marston declared.

HOUSING PROGRAM WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The President's housing program is like a ship successfully launched in the presence of a cheering crowd but headed for a nice sail through rocks in a tempest. The administration housing experts count on New Deal ballyhoo to carry the program through, but they are frankly nervous about it.

The success or failure of the program is pretty important, since it is the essential feature of the President's present conservative approach to the depression. Briefly speaking, the idea is to stimulate a great private construction boom by offering very high government guarantees on mortgages, and forcing a general lowering of building costs. Unfortunately, the lowering of building costs seems essential to success.

That means, first, a violent, although probably sub-rosa, row with the building trades unions. In the large cities, where housing is most needed, high labor costs are the biggest element in high building costs.

OBSTACLES IN WAY Right here, the housing experts will collide head-on with Big Bill Hutcheson, of the carpenters and woodworkers, and John Coefield, of the plumbers, who happen to be the most determined anti-New Dealers in the ranks of labor. The President's housing men hope to persuade building trades workers to accept a contractor-guaranteed annual wage in return for lowered hourly rates, but Hutcheson and Coefield are having none of it.

Two weapons will be used against Hutcheson and Coefield. First will be the ballyhoo, emphasizing the patriotic duty of co-operating in the housing-recovery program. And second, the New Dealers will go behind the backs of the building trades union leaders to their locals in hand-picked cities, and try to arrange annual wage deals with the locals.

The annual wage idea is an old pet of the President's, and there is some prospect that the administration will get tough about it. One high administration official is already planning a regular Dutch uncle lecture to the building trades workers.

Second, the housing experts will have to win a fight with some contractor building material manufacturers. Prices are high and price-fixing is common, especially among the manufacturers. The prices must come down. The anti-trust laws will be brandished threateningly at the obstinate, and once more the old patriotic ballyhoo will be used to build a fire under them.

A REAL WEAPON And, third, the housing experts will have to conquer the banks and building and loan associations. Their weapons for fighting the labor and construction people are not much better than sugarcane, but they have a real automatic pistol to fire at the money-lenders. The pistol is the plan for national mortgage associations.

In the housing bill, the RFC is authorized to advance $50,000,000 for the capital of the first of these. With $50,000,000 of capital, the association may issue $1,000,000,000 of debentures to the public. The association will use its $1,000,000,000 to offer mortgage money direct to the public. In fact, it will be in open competition with the private money-lenders, which the private money-lenders will certainly resent. Probably they will have to take it and like it, however. Here again, ballyhoo will be resorted to. The ballyhoos will go into communities and plead with local leaders to take mortgages on new construction as a patriotic duty.

Even with the mortgage associations, it must be admitted that the prospects for the housing program look a trifle grim. The President's economists believe that, to do good, the housing boom must be started when spring brings a seasonal upturn in business. And in Great Britain, where the labor and material costs problems were nonexistent, it took a couple of years to get housing going in a big way.

OUT OF THE SOCK A mildly inflationary move by the administration may be expected during the next few months, when the time comes for additional relief appropriations. The President, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., and other eminent New Dealers are beginning to have a sort of psychosis about the size of the national debt. They will have to find more money for relief somewhere, but they don't want to add to the debt total.

Therefore, influential fiscal officials of the government are already acknowledging that the $1,200,000,000 of sterilized gold will be released in installments some time after the new year. When this gold was "sterilized," it was, in effect, popped into the treasury's sock. Now it will be brought out of the sock and used, unless the whole gold supply situation changes surprisingly.

The reasons are obvious. First, and most important, is the coming relief mentioned above. Second, there is the fact that treasury and federal reserve men are a bit touchy about the charges that the raising of banking reserve requirements last spring and the other similar moves were wondrously deflationary.

They are rather pleased, therefore, to take a step which will have a psychologically inflationary effect in spite of the already ample supplies of bank credit. And, third, there is the hope of silencing the congressional inflationists, who are starting to croon little private songs of printing presses.

The President's advisers are also saying that the desterilizing move is tactically perfect as it suits either strategy toward the depression. If the President goes on budget-balancing, it will help supply the bill. If he decides to spend and inflate, it is inflationary.

And I've been trying

A thought, fly, fly,
For this verse:
I guess I'll quit,
For sense is dying—

The Tax On Speed.
Eliminating entirely the factor of safety, with all its attendant expenses of higher insurance rates, doctor and hospital bills and funeral costs, the man who drives his automobile too fast, or inefficiently, pays a tremendous price for his indulgence. In extra operating costs and extra depreciation of the car.

We've all known that, beyond a certain speed, an automobile consumes more gasoline and oil, per mile. There is a speed, varying of course with different cars and under different conditions, which is the most economical, giving you the most miles per gallon of gas and the most miles per quart of oil. Likewise most miles per set of tires, most miles per set of brake bands and least depreciation of your car.

Now one of the larger insurance companies, the Aetna, has gathered together statistics, after extensive research, and furnishes them to you in a booklet entitled "Are You Paying a Speed Tax?" Naturally, an insurance company is vitally interested. For they pay the face values when death, injury and property damage results from careless or reckless driving.

Here Are Some Figures.
Speaking generally, a car is going at its most economical speed when it "rolls along," by an easy combination of momentum and motive power, not too fast yet fast enough to avoid the "drag" which comes when moving too slowly.

Taking twelve popular makes of cars for the tests, it was shown that a car in the under-a-thousand-dollar class which gets twenty miles to the gallon of gasoline at 20 miles per hour, when properly tuned up, at 70 miles per hour gets 12 miles to the gallon.

The increased use of gas is faster than you'd think. At 30 m.p.h. that car gets about 18 miles to the gallon. At 40 m.p.h., 15 miles, at 50 m.p.h., 12 miles, at 60 m.p.h., 10 miles and at 70, less than 11.

The higher powered car that gets 12 miles at 20 m.p.h., drops to around 8 miles at 70 m.p.h.

In regard to oil, the average popular priced car in perfect condition will require one quart of oil to travel 1,000 miles at 30 miles per hour. At 55 m.p.h. it will require 7 quarts. Quite a difference.

The Life Of Tires.
Tests of 30 cars, driven at different speeds and with different degrees of care, show a remarkable difference in the life of tires. The fastest and most brutally driven car in the test needed new tires after 7,500 miles. The best driven car, at a proper moderate speed, didn't require new shoes until it had run 27,600 miles. They were the same make and quality of tires, too.

And every car burns gas at a tremendous rate when being accelerated, whether from standing start or from low to high speed. And the most expensive thing of all is accelerating on an upgrade. The advice given, summed up, is to drive at a moderate speed, keeping up with the normal movement of traffic on the highway.

Avoid closing the throttle unnecessarily by making fewer sudden stops and starts. Less oil is sucked into the combustion chambers from the crankcase and carbon is not accumulated as rapidly.

Keep in time with traffic signals, if you can. Roll gently up to red lights so as to avoid, as much as possible, stopping and starting, the waste of momentum and unnecessary gear shifting.

Taper off on speed when climbing hills so you go over the top at a reasonable pace. This will save wear on your brakes when going down the other side.

And, above all, avoid being erratic. Don't loaf and then suddenly accelerate to pass another car. Don't race for a mile and then dawdle. Keep a uniform, moderate, easy pace and you'll arrive at your destination just as soon and at much lower cost.

World's Window

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Trace in Spain?
NEW YORK—Persistent but officially unsupported rumors are circulating that peace negotiations are going on behind the scenes—not directly between Loyalists and Insurgents, but through the intermediary of third parties. In the meantime, the long-heralded offensive of General Franco, on the Aragon front, is on the one hand said to have been called off, while the New York Times correspondent in Madrid, Mr. Matthews, reports that 100,000 men are ready to strike at any moment.

The peace rumors had their origin in the journey of Senor Luis Companys' journey to France a few weeks ago. Senor Companys is the governor of the generalitat of Catalonia, also leader of the dominant political party in that autonomous province, the Liberal Democratic group, which corresponds, in so far as political philosophy is concerned, with the party of Chauntemps, Herriot and Daladier, in France, or let us say with the La Follette Progressives in this country.

It is not known whether Senor Companys crossed over into England, but this is not unlikely. On so delicate a mission it is almost certain that the Catalan statesman did not advertise his various moves to the press. At any rate, the peace or truce proposals originated in England. It is said that Britain proposes that Spain shall unite under a Bourbon prince, that is to say, under Juan of Bourbon-Hapsburg, the third son of ex-King Alfonso. One of the royalist papers published in France, significantly carrying the following text from St. John's Gospel as a streamer, headline the last few weeks: "There was a man sent from God. And his name was John." John is of course, Juan in Spanish.

But the proposal to restore the monarchy, one may be sure, did not come from Luis Companys, than whom there is no more ardent Republican and one who was more than once imprisoned by the late Primo de Rivera regime. My guess is that Senor Companys, if he made a suggestion for a basis of peace, simply proposed the division of the country into two independent governments, one with the capital at Madrid, to be administered by Franco, and another in Barcelona. I think the royalists would be willing to make the concession of Madrid to Franco, in exchange, perhaps for Saragossa and Huesca, on the Aragon front.

It's Up To Franco.

Franco's offensive might speed the peace overtures, but it is said that he is extremely short of money and that there is grave dissatisfaction amongst his followers, who, upon hearing of the possibility of the restoration of the throne under one of Alfonso's sons, grew as angry as bulls in the Pampeluna arena when they see a red rag. If there is to be a King, he must be their Carlism candidate, one from the old branch of the Bourbons, they insist. I dare say General Franco does not like a King at all. Miguel de Unamuno, the rector of Salamanca University, said to me in May, 1936, before the outbreak of the rebellion: "What those generals would like to institute is a pretorian republic."

"They are against the monarchy and it is they who stabbed the monarchy in the back in its dying hour." Don Miguel referred to Generals Sanjurjo, Franco, Queipo de Llano, Goded, Castellanos and Mola, who switched over to the Republican side even before Alfonso had fled. In fact, it was their desertion which made Alfonso realize that the jig was up.

Britain's peace proposals, this is known definitely, are a result of Lord Halifax's journey to Berlin. Herr Hitler is now ready to withdraw all aid from Spain on the understanding that no Soviet republic or anything communistic will be installed there. Russia has already notified the Loyalists that she can no longer send supplies and military advisers.

This seems to indicate, though, that General Franco's position is not so good. Surely Hitler needs no guarantee from Franco that he will not install a Communist regime. That he demands this from the Loyalists would rather indicate that he expects them to win over Franco, once the German and Italian volunteers are withdrawn.

For this season, a Franco offensive, if it comes now, will be almost desperate. He must strike before volunteers are withdrawn. He has 100,000 men, but the Loyalists, it is said, will have an army of 600,000 in the field within a few months. Peace may be near.

A Town Scandal Need

Distress the Stranger Who

Is Driving Through

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Bill Jones was a fretter and a worrier. The things that tried him were not alone his private affairs, which were in a sonably good condition, but all matters, private and public, of which he had knowledge.

He fretted and worried because his wife couldn't get rid of dandruff, or because she ate too many sweets, or because she argued with strangers.

He worried because his married daughter let the baby with pencils; because his brother wasted too much money; because one of his nieces was dumb.

He worried because there was a quarrel in his church and pastor's salary wasn't paid; because the town officials were incompetent and taxes were not collected fairly; because the state legislature was composed of second-rate men and the highways neglected; because the national government wasted money adopted foolish policies; because foreign nations were ruled by fools or tyrants and the world's affairs were in a mess.

If he hadn't been a religious man, he would have worried about the management of heaven.

One spring when he had worried himself to the verge of breakdown, his wife persuaded him to visit his Uncle Jud lived across the state line in Grassville.

Bill soon discovered that his uncle and other relatives and of their neighbors were fretters. They were always hot and bothered about something. They looked anxious and their tone of voice always seemed exasperated or alarmed or distressed. They told their troubles, but he didn't know the inside of anything couldn't get interested.

The day he got back home, his wife said to him: "Bill, so thing's got to be done. Our neighbor's boy is staying out till hours and they say he's drinking beer."

"Well," said Bill, "don't fret about it. It's not our business it will turn out all right."

His wife's mouth dropped open. "Why, Bill Jones?" she cried. "What's come over you?"

"No," said Bill. "I've learned some sense. Over in Grassville everybody was worried nearly frantic about things, but I could feel like they did because I was just a visitor and wasn't going to stay long."

"What's that got to do with it?" asked his wife.

"Well," said Bill, "I'm just a visitor here on earth and going to stay long. Why spoil my visit by fretting about things soon be leaving?"

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"He beat her and he bit her but he bought her better butter." Broadway's storied "big butter and egg man" was no more temperamental with his lady than are the butter and egg interests of Wisconsin with the south. After imposing a prohibitory tax of 15 cents a pound on the southern margarine for fear it will compete with their butter, Wisconsin now wants federal soil conservation payments withheld from southern farmers who plant dairy feeds on land formerly devoted to cotton. Yet in spite of all this, Wisconsin loves the south so that it has appropriated money to send 100 of its citizens on a good will tour of this region next March.

Maybe they are coming to persuade us to stop growing any cotton at all, since the seed tends to be so much like the vegetable oil from which is made the margarine that competes with their butter (not that it really competes, because most of the people who use margarine cannot afford butter). Maybe they want to create southern good will with a view to having our legislators declare the milking of cows in the south a misdemeanor. Maybe they want to make speeches in the south with a view to slinging all the bulls here. Maybe they want to find out whether the less than $100 annual cash income per capita our farmers receive is honestly come by, since their own farmers receive only $323 per capita.

On Wisconsin! You'll be a great state some day if you can get enough laws passed to let you have everything your way. And even if this means shutting out the south from both cotton and cows, perhaps we can make a living her taking in each other's washing.

Incidentally, though, the objection of Wisconsin and other dairy interests to the development of a dairy industry in the south as a partial substitute for cotton touches a fundamental problem from which more and more is likely to be heard. Most of the agricultural things which the south is doing or is being urged to do in place of so much cotton growing are things which mean new competition for farmers in other parts of the country. If the potato growers of Maine had as much brass as the butter and egg men of Wisconsin they might be demanding that the south plant no potatoes on the soil withdrawn from cotton. And so with the corn growers of Kansas, the fruit growers of the west, the truck gardeners of New Jersey, etc., etc.

In other words, the south's loss of its foreign cotton market is going to mean a loss to all the other regions of this country unless something is done about it. It is going to mean that the south will grow or do things that will take money away from the rest of the country. It is going to mean that the south will be even less paid.

Senate Votes Double Tax on Beer; House Okays Stabilization Fund

In charge of the bill on the Speaker Pro Tem, John C. C. presided. The house sent back to committee a $300 household and kitchen exemption bill, the major senate bill taken up by the speaker. The committee asked to make several minor changes in the measure. Opponents of the bill desired these changes. Representative Lanier, of Bond county, an administrative expert, made the motion to amend the bill. No general opinion to it is expected to develop in the day the house comes on public highways voted on by the administration discarding the present $3 tag on cars and the bus and truck and figures prominently in the Rivers program. The day's proceedings in the house also were marked by the presentation of a resolution by Representative Edwards, of Thomas county, calling for a sine die adjournment of the assembly today providing no general tax revision program is submitted. No action was taken on the resolution. The 34-to-12 majority for the beer bill in the senate surprised even the administration's strongest supporters, some of whom were offering concessions as the bill headed for a vote. Senator Atkinson, of Savannah, the Rivers spokesman in the senate, had predicted only a 2-to-1 majority over the week end.

Roll Call. The roll call follows: Ayes—Allen, Atkinson, Atwood, Brock, Burgin, Burrell, Chason, Clements, Forester, Fowler, Grinnell, Hampton, Hardman, Harrell, Holmes, Jackson, Johnson, Jones, Kimbrough, McCutchen, McKenzie, Moyer, Neely, Patten, Peebles, Phillips, Purdom, Shannon, Sikes, Sutton, Terrell, Turner, Whitehead, Williams.

Nays—Almand, Aultman, Flynt, Horne, Lindsay, Peterson, Pope, Pruett, Robinson, Sammon, Thrasher, Walker. Absent—Ennis, Harrison, Knabb, Millican, Shedd.

Spivey took the floor to assist Administration Leader Atkinson in support of the bill. Calling it "an important piece of legislation," Spivey said "the beer people came to the assembly and asked to have beer legalized. They indicated taxes were no object as long as they were permitted to sell beer in Georgia."

Spivey scouted statements that 10-cent beer would be eliminated by the proposed tax increase. Increase Cited. "They tell you 10-cent beer in South Carolina is no more. They say placing this tax in Georgia will run the industry out of the state. I quote you from a telegram I received from the chairman of the South Carolina Tax Commission which says revenues increased from $272,000 in 1934 to $874,000 in 1937. Does this look as if they were throttling the industry? South Carolina has in effect today a tax higher than is proposed here."

The telegram was from W. G. Query, chairman of the South Carolina Tax Commission. Spivey cited the state's educational program and mentioned the 200,000 additional children who have registered in Georgia schools since free textbooks were provided. He said this necessitated employment of additional teachers "to the extent of an outlay of $700,000 for which we have no means to pay."

Senator Roy Thrasher, of Watkinsonville, questioned Spivey, saying the bill in no way allocated money for teachers. Spivey replied the tax allocated beer revenues to the educational fund and that "if there is any product being sold in Georgia today which should be taxed to pay for these school children and teachers it is the beer industry."

Spivey, the president, votes only in a case of a tie. In attacking the $4.50 per barrel and 2 cents per bottle tax on beer, Senator Lindsay charged that it is "confiscatory." "Two years ago when we legalized beer and opened up the state to its sale we told the people in the industry that we were going to tax them so much and then we doubled that tax during the regular session this year," Senator Lindsay asserted. "Now they want the tax doubled again. Well, I am an administration supporter. I think that Rivers is making a good governor but I think this legislation is too hasty and should at least be put off until we have had more time to consider it. I do not want to drive the beer industry out of Georgia and I do not think the administration does."

Arguing for his motion to delay, Lindsay said:

"There is no emergency requiring hasty action on the bill."

Lindsay attacked what he termed as "hop, skip and jump legislation, hastily passed and hastily devised."

Senator Neely, speaking in favor of immediate consideration, said "I don't think if we stayed here the rest of our lives we could convince the senator from the 34th (Lindsay) it is a good bill."

"The beer people sold the people of this state on beer purely on a revenue basis. I don't think it would be possible to run the beer industry out of the state."

"I see no possible excuse for continuing to put off to a future date passage of this bill. I don't think the price of beer at retail will increase one penny. I think the beer people will absorb it."

Senator Atkinson warned the senate if it wished to adjourn before Christmas it had only three weeks to pass "all these tax measures."

Then he said "if you are going to attend to business, now is the time to do it. Every man in here knows every item and every comma in that bill. It is up to us to either take it or reject it." Several other senators discussed the bill, among them Aultman, of Byron, who said it was "passing strange" that the beer bill was backed by men who favor legalization of hard liquor.

Flynt, of Flynn, said the bill was "unfair" and "nothing but stop-gap stuff."

He added the "hoped for" general tax revision plan appeared "gone with the wind."

Don't Like "Yes Men." Flynt said Floor Leader Atkinson was among the sponsors of the "now defunct" Talmadge administration unit there was a "parting, maybe because Gene didn't play on little David's harp."

Flynt added: "I don't like yes men."

While the senate was preparing to vote on the beer bill Governor Rivers received a petition, bearing more than 50,000 signatures, urging that he not push the bill. However, there appears to be no doubt as to its being signed. It is an administration bill.

The house went along, devoting most of its time to the treasury stabilization bill, which Speaker Harris explained.

Representative Pilcher, of Warren county, and others sponsored the amendments providing for the road and school fund exemptions which Speaker Harris agreed to.

Other Bills Unnecessary. Questioned as to whether the beer bill and the stabilization measure would enable the state to meet its financial problems, Harris said:

"I believe if we pass the beer bill and the stabilization measure it will not be necessary to pass any more revenue bills at this session. Mind you, I say it will not be necessary; I do not say it would not be advisable."

Several members expressed fear the stabilization plan, which would take a portion of all state revenues, would work a hardship on county governments.

"The counties of Georgia have bought $3,000,000 worth of road machinery this year," Harris replied. "If they can spend that much money for machinery, they can get along on less revenue by practicing a little economy."

Investigation Asked. Investigation of the manner in which a bill to extend Broad street was passed during the last legislative session was asked in the house by Representatives Evans, of McDuffie, and Brown, of Peach.

The two representatives charged in a resolution to authorize appointment of an investigating committee that the bill was termed "a local" one by the Fulton delegation but that it was really a mandatory order for the state highway department to spend between $500,000 and $750,000 for the extension of Broad street in the city of Atlanta.

Committee Named. Brown, of Peach, yesterday afternoon was named chairman of the committee on inquiry, which includes Representatives Mankin, Hastings and Kendrick, of Fulton; Sutton, of Wilkes; Joel, of Clarke; Candler, of DeKalb; Guyton, of Effingham, and Evans, of McDuffie.

Mrs. Helen Douglas Mankin, Fulton representative, said the bill was not introduced as a strictly local bill, but as "a local bill of general application."

A bill to repeal the act was also introduced.

Plans for the extension of Broad street to Whitehall street are under way in Atlanta now. The extension would create a new direct route from the south to the heart of the city and proponents of the project claim it would lessen traffic congestion more than any other project which could be constructed.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

A FAITHFUL DOG. Dr. Robert G. Lee, of Memphis, was telling me the other night about a dog somewhere there in Tennessee that proved the faithfulness of a dog to his master in a surprising degree. He said that a man in Tennessee had this fine terrier and a friend in New Orleans asked to keep the dog while the owner went on a long journey. A few days after the dog was carried to New Orleans he got away and the friend was distressed beyond words. He advertised in the newspapers and over the radio, offering a liberal reward for the return of his friend's valued terrier. No trace of the dog could be found. In desperation he wrote to his friend's partner back in Tennessee to explain his great sorrow over losing the dog.

Eleven weeks passed, and the neighbor in Tennessee called the friend in New Orleans over long distance to say that the dog had come home—that he was lame and bruised, his eyes bloodshot, and his strength spent—but he was back at his master's home, looking for the one he loved.

They took the railroad time tables and figured out the distance.

It was 771 miles from the Tennessee city to New Orleans. None could tell, of course, whether he followed the straight course, but he was back at his master's home. Dr. Lee said the story was questioned at first, but quickly certified by well-known citizens both in Tennessee and New Orleans. "Be thou faithful unto death," said Jesus, "and I will give thee the crown of life."

BOTTLERS TO END SESSIONS TODAY

Extensive Advertising Urged by President Cannon.

Business sessions today will conclude the 20th annual convention of the Georgia Bottlers' Association, which opened yesterday at the Ansley hotel. Harrison Jones, of Atlanta, is scheduled to speak today.

In welcoming the group yesterday, Mayor Hartsfield said that "Atlanta can move forward only as Georgia moves forward." George S. Cobb Jr., former state president of the association, responded to the address of welcome.

Fred L. Cannon, president of the association, called for co-operation of the bottlers during the coming year and advocated extensive advertising as a co-operative gesture.

Others included on yesterday's program were James Oliver, secretary of the American Bottlers of Carbonated Beverages; D. B. Stone, of Baltimore, and Martin Schmidt, of Louisville. The session ended with a banquet and dance last night.

URUGUAY PUTS CONSUL IN INSURGENT SPAIN

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Dec. 6.—(P)—The Uruguayan government announced today the appointment of a consul at Burgos, Spain, and added that similar posts would be established in other centers of Insurgent Spain.

The announcement explained, however, that the action did not constitute formal recognition of the government of Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco. At the same time, Spanish Insurgent officials were authorized to name consuls to Uruguay.

$125,000 FLORIDA FIRE. ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Dec. 6.—(UP)—Damages estimated at $125,000 were caused today when fire swept through the W. H. Lester Furniture Company building. Several firemen narrowly escaped injury when a section of the roof collapsed.

DOWN IN JERSEY AS BLUECOATS JUST INTO PLANT

Is Not Moscow,' Police
Chief Tells Strikers;
Routs Them.

SEY CITY, N. J., Dec. 6.—The CIO's first sit-down in this city ended within an hour tonight when 45 police officers, led by Chief Harry Walsh, routed 60 demonstrators.

Members of the Standard Oil Company plant, bluecoats hurried to the building. "This is not Moscow," Walsh told the strikers. "I'm the police here. You'd better surrender. If you don't you will be taken over the property. Your street clothes on and get out."

Walsh said the strikers were slow getting up and ordered patrolmen into the plant. The strikers quickly departed, but protest.

The sit-downers had been reported to be one thing; this is another. We'll let three of you sit down tomorrow."

NO EXPENSE CURB IN MILITARY SEEN

U. S. 1938-39 Defense Budget of Billion Predicted.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(UP)—World unrest will cause President Roosevelt to ask congress in January to budget the cost of national defense in the 1938-39 fiscal year at the billion-dollar peak it reached this fiscal year, it was reported tonight.

Although the President has asked all government departments to curb expenditures as an aid in balancing the budget, there is no indication that he intends to economize in the military establishment or at the expense of the navy, which he is determined to place in a "second-to-none" position.

Life Begins At 40

"Public Liability No. 1"
On Trial Today

NEW Evidence Coming
In Daily That This Crime
Must Be Checked

"HEAR YE—HEAR YE," the clerk is opening court for the trial of an unusual case today.

"Public Liability No. 1" is brought in by the guard and takes his place with downcast eyes.

The courtroom is crowded. Everyone knows the charge: "Criminal loss of energy, ambition and self-respect at 40." Witness after witness takes the stand, piling up evidence against the defendant. His employer testifies that he has become useless in business. His wife swears he is impossible to live with. His son feels he should have made more of an effort to send him to school. His doctor says he has been neglecting his health.

No, this case isn't a matter of actual court record—but it might well be. For it is a "crime" the way many men let themselves go at 40.

They are in a rut. They lack the courage and initiative to go after better chances in broader fields. Yet actually they have gained experience and judgment worth more to them than all the fire of youth.

If there were a law against this after-40 slump our courts would be full of these cases. And it might be the means of converting thousands of public and private liabilities into assets to themselves and society!

YOU Can Make a Fresh Start, Too

Dear Life Begins:

I am a writer and a painter, but my job also involves a lot of traveling in connection with promotion and publicity of different kinds.

When I'm writing or drawing, I get no exercise at all, but eat fairly regular meals.

Traveling, I'll be very active for days at a time, but have irregular meals.

The consequence was I had trouble with my digestion, and the resulting nervous strain gave me blinding headaches.

A friend told me to eat Fleischmann's Yeast—that it stimulates digestion. I thought, "It will have to be good to keep me straightened out."

But it was just what I needed. It helped my digestion so much, that irregular meals and lack of exercise didn't bother me. I stopped having nervous headaches. Now I'm always sure I'll be able to do a full week's work. I can travel without dreading any ill effects—so I always see that I have a supply of yeast ready at hand. CARROLL KELLY

Mr. Carroll Kelly

Dear Life Begins:

I had never been really healthy. I was very weak as a child—my digestion never seemed to work properly. My family worried and the situation affected my viewpoint.

Really Living At Last

As I grew up I realized how seldom normally healthy people appreciate how much good health is responsible for a happy, successful life. I envied my friends.

Nothing did much good. Then my wife suggested Fleischmann's Yeast. It had helped her. So I tried it. Success was the result. My digestion improved until even I was surprised.

My viewpoint changed with my health and I was able to lead a happy, normal life at last, with no digestive troubles. Business went so much more smoothly I added new territory to my real-estate operations.

Fleischmann's Yeast helped me so much that it became a habit, one I shall never lose because so much depends on it. LESLIE AUSTEN

Mr. Leslie Austen

Dear Life Begins:

I am a ticket collector. A ticket window isn't a good ventilator—I get no sunlight and not very much fresh air. My health began to suffer. I was nervous and crabby. There were complaints and I was afraid I might lose my job.

No Worry Over Job Now

Even my family complained. I never had the energy to take them out. Finally my wife said: "I think Fleischmann's Yeast would be good for you. I'm tired of being nagged." So I tried the yeast and started to get better after just a week. My nerves behaved themselves because my digestion was all right again.

Now I take the children out all they want—tobogganing and on trips. I keep my digestion and nerves in good order with yeast, so I'm sure of my job, too. No more worries on that score! ARTHUR WILSON

The Stomach is One of the First Places Where People Grow Old

The years after 40 should be the best years of your life. They should be busy—interesting. Are they?

Are you enjoying your mental prime—or are you hampered because of a gradual slipping in your physical health?

Too many people past 40 suffer from a slowing down of the digestive action. At this age, the gastric juices tend to become less abundant and weaker in digestive power. And this loss of digestive efficiency has its effect on your ENTIRE system.

By helping to increase the amount and strength of the gastric juices, Fleischmann's Yeast stimulates digestion. That is the reason why so many people over 40 have found Fleischmann's Yeast especially helpful.

Fleischmann's Yeast is rich in 4 vitamins—each of which has an important use in keeping the body up to par. This supply of vitamins brings you an added tonic action.

Don't let slow digestion cheat you of your prime of life. Begin eating 3 cakes of Fleischmann's fresh Yeast regularly every day—one cake ½ hour before meals—plain or dissolved in a little water. Soon you'll feel—and look—better. See how much more promising your prospects appear, how much more interesting and exciting life becomes with returning physical energy!

$25 WILL BE PAID FOR LETTERS of success after 40—so helpful to others we wish to print them. If you can truly credit to Fleischmann's Yeast some part of the health that made your success possible—write us—enclosing your picture. (Letters and pictures cannot be returned.) ALABAMA PENGUINS TRY TO KEEP WARM

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 6.—(P)—Penguins, three exactly like those of the south polar ice lands, scrouched themselves into a huddle here today—before an electric heater to keep warm.

A fourth penguin stood just back of the three that pushed their chests right against the heater grating, actually shivering and changing from foot to foot now and then.

One bird saucily turned his attitude to the heater, after warming forward—just like a man before an open grate.

SUMMONS OF NLRB IGNORED BY EDITOR

Youthful Challenger of Board Speaks on "Labor Racketeering" Instead.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(P)—Hartley W. Barclay, youthful editor who challenged the right of the National Labor Relations Board to subpoena editorial records and notes, addressed an industrial gathering here today on "Labor Racketeering" and failed to attend a board hearing at Steubenville, Ohio, to which he had been summoned.

Barclay, speaking at the annual meeting of the National Industrial Council, charged Communism was being taught American workers. He said the attempt of the labor board to gain access to his notes and other records was an invasion of the freedom of the press.

The editor of "Mill and Factory" was summoned to produce his papers at a hearing on charges the Weirton Steel Company, a subsidiary of National Steel Corporation, had violated the Wagner labor relations act. In a recent article he had described the hearing as "colossal burlesque staged with taxpayers' money."

BIG DAILIES BACK RAMSPECK'S BILL

comment was called to the attention of the Atlanta, he declared:

"For the first time since I have been a member of congress, a real issue between the spoils and civil service systems has been concretely presented. Senator McKellar's bill is not only the old spoils system bill, but the Tennesseean's re-entire philosophy of our merit system."

"If his bill becomes law it will constitute a repudiation of the merit system and the platforms of both major political parties."

The "Post" editorial says: "The advocates of political spoils in the government service have not merely repudiated the Ramspeck bill to place all first, second and third-class postmasters under civil service regulations; they have also brought forward a substitute measure that would place these positions permanently under the patronage system."

"It is not surprising to learn that Senator McKellar is the sponsor of this vicious attack upon administration plans to extend the scientific selection of government personnel. His appetite for patronage has been frequently demonstrated. The astonishing fact is that eight other members of the senate postoffice committee have lined up with him."

"Transportation of mail is entirely a business undertaking. There is not the slightest excuse for the intrusion of politics into this essential public service. Yet, of more than 14,000 first, second and third-class postmasters, a large portion are selected because of their usefulness to some politician. Only crass indifference toward the public welfare on the part of legislators would permit the continued existence of such a wasteful and inefficient system."

"The ideal man would be to sweep out all the political henchmen and fill their places with competent executives recruited under civil service law."

"Incredible Report."

"Not content to repudiate the Ramspeck bill, Senator McKellar's committee has brought out an incredible report attacking the principle of the civil service. Apparently the senate is nearing a showdown in which its members will have to choose between a straightforward merit system and continuation of the influence racket in selecting federal personnel."

For years the "Monitor" explains, "demands for civil service reform have been put off with platform promises, with pseudo civil service laws, with excuses about national emergency and with reluctance of political parties to blanket into the government members of another party."

"Such services," the editorial concludes, "will be less available in the present situation. The senators are confronted with an almost inescapable choice between an excessively bad spoils measure and a civil service bill."

CLUBS TO PROVIDE FOR POOR FAMILIES

Toys and Food To Be Distributed Christmas.

The Christmas season this year will not be all tinsel, tissue and ribbon, but of faces glowing with happiness and stomachs well filled, if Georgia organizations carry out their Yuletide plans. In every corner of the state, plans have been announced for providing food and gifts for the needy, and for otherwise making the season one of joy where disappointment and despair might otherwise dwell.

In Rome, the churches, the Exchange, Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs, the American Legion and other organizations will join with the Salvation Army in providing Christmas baskets of food. A Yuletide program also is planned especially for the city's needy.

In Bremen, members of the Civitan Club plan to distribute baskets to the needy, and have enlisted the aid of the local missionary societies and the Bremen Parents' Teachers' Association. The club is sponsoring the decoration of the city park, the erection of a huge Christmas tree.

At North Georgia College in Dahlonega, the annual carol program will be presented in the auditorium next Sunday night by the combined men's and women's glee clubs.

In LaGrange, approximately $2,200 in Christmas savings accounts have been distributed.

Be Extra Careful about

STUBBORN COLDS

Relieve Their Misery
this PROVED Way

TOO often, the cold that "hangs on" is a result of neglect. Be extra careful of a stubborn cold, of course. But the safest course is to be careful of all colds. Don't experiment. Relieve their misery this doubly proved way.

Here's What To Do: It's best to stay in bed and get lots of rest. Eat lightly, drink plenty of water, and keep elimination regular. And use Vicks VapoRub without delay.

VapoRub has been proved by everyday use in more homes than any other medication of its kind—further proved by the largest clinical tests ever made on colds. (Full details in every VapoRub package.) Only Vicks give you proof like this.

No Long Waiting for Relief to Begin...

VapoRub is direct external treatment. No "dosing"—no stomach upsets. Just massage it on throat, chest, and make its long-continued double action last even longer—spread a thick layer on the chest and cover with a warm cloth.

Relief starts almost at once. You begin to feel warm and comfortable as VapoRub goes to work direct through the skin like a poultice. At the same time its medicated vapors, released by body warmth, are carried direct to the irritated air-passages with every breath.

This double action loosens phlegm, eases irritation and coughing, helps break local congestion. And long after restful sleep comes, VapoRub keeps right on working.

NOTE: If there is much irritation and coughing, or the air-passages feel clogged with heavy mucus or phlegm, even stronger vapor action is helpful. Pour boiling water in a bowl, melt a teaspoonful of VapoRub in it, and inhale the steamy vapors for several minutes.

G. O. P. PURGE CALL STIRS SOUTHERN IRE

Marietta Woman Finds Vermont Governor's Suggestion 'Amusing.'

MONTPELIER, Vt., Dec. 6.—(AP) Counting New England Republican leaders as his allies in a fight for a revitalization of their party, Governor George D. Aiken tonight awaited the reaction of the Republican national committee to the suggestion it "be purged of the baneful influence of the southern committee."

The Governor's open letter yesterday to the Republican command, threatening a party revolt if "reactionary elements" were not uprooted and a "broad affirmative" program adopted, drew opposition, however, from Georgia.

Mrs. Bertha M. Field, of Marietta, Republican national committeewoman for Georgia, called the Aiken's statement "very sweeping—amusing to me," and suggested "the Vermont Governor has never been very far south."

Release of Aiken's letter came almost simultaneously with a demand from H. Styles Bridges, Republican, New Hampshire, for the Republican party "to clean our own house. We must see new faces in high places," he told a Springfield, Ill., audience, "if we are to succeed."

Republican Governor Lewis O. Barrows, of Maine, joined with Aiken in calling for a "purge" of the party, asserting "new ideals, ambitions and faces" were needed.

Constitution of United States Outlined for Essay Contest

By WILLIAM W. BREWTON,
Director, State Sesquicentennial Commission.

Article 8. Turnout in the Convention.
The voting in the convention was by states, not by delegates. Each state had one vote regardless of the number of delegates it sent.

The great fight in the convention was between the nationalists, who desired this rule changed, and the federalists, who desired it maintained. Before voting finally on any matter, the convention resolved itself into a committee of all the members to consider propositions submitted. After all propositions pending were voted on in committee, the committee would "rise," or return to the status of a convention, in which status alone could its vote be considered final.

Randolph-Morris Plan.
Then the Randolph-Morris proposition, "that a national government ought to be established, consisting of a supreme legislative, executive and judiciary," was offered for vote on May 30. The committee of the whole adopted it.

Ellsworth, of Connecticut, said that they had as well cut out the word "national," and retain federalism; otherwise, the states would never adopt what they did Gorham, of Massachusetts, Ellsworth now moved that the words, "United States," be substituted for the word, "national." The convention voted for his motion unanimously and immediately cut out the word, "national," wherever it appeared in all the propositions before the convention, substituting the words, "United States." This was the most momentous act of the whole convention.

Determined Destiny.
It determined the destiny of the union so far as its legal form was concerned. Thenceforth, all national powers assumed by the general government would have to be by force and usurpation; it could not be by consent and law.

HUNDREDS SEEK PRIZES IN ESSAY CONTEST.
While plans were being pushed in Augusta for the state celebration of the 150th anniversary of Georgia's ratification of the United States Constitution, hundreds of grammar and high school students in the state were uncovering new information about the supreme law of the land yesterday as the Constitution's prize essay contest went into its second week.

The Constitution is offering a silver cup and three cash prizes to the three Georgia grammar or high school students writing the best essays on one of two subjects—"The Formation and Ratification of the Constitution of the United States," or "The Men Who Made Our United States Constitution."

Entries must be postmarked before midnight, December 22. Essays must be between 500 and 1,000 words long.

FOREIGN NATIONS WARNED BY WELLES
Undersecretary Says U. S. Will Not Tolerate Violation of Monroe Doctrine.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, inveighing against the "alien" propaganda of the American continent, indirectly warned foreign nations tonight that the United States would not tolerate any violation of the Monroe Doctrine.

Addressing the Inter-American Center of George Washington University, the State Department's Latin-American expert said: "Any attempt on the part of non-American powers to exert through force their political or material influence on the American continent would be immediately a matter of the gravest concern, not only to the United States but to every other American republic as well, and appropriate action would undoubtedly be determined upon as the result of common consultation between them."

Sentiment Will Figure in Flowers Sent to Debutante Duo Tonight

By Sally Forth.

UNUSUAL amount of sentiment will be displayed this evening when Mary Morris and Kathryn Barnwell make their debut at the Piedmont Driving Club. Friends of the popular girls have "said it with flowers," for the floral tributes to be sent by them will bear special significance. Mary will wear a cluster of baby orchids in her hair, the gift of her small niece, Anna Morris, daughter of Jack and Frances Morris. As a feature of her debut ensemble, Mary will wear an exquisite real lace cape and her shoulders, which was sent by Elizabeth Harris, of Gary, a lifelong friend of Mary's mother, Mrs. H. L. Morris.

Kathryn will wear a cluster of orchids, the gift of a group of young women who have been friends of the debutante since childhood. The group gave debutante Sarah her flowers, when she came to her bow to society in early September. This evening, when Kathryn receives her orchids, she will wear the names of Frances Spradlin, Helen Carke, Lillian Ward, Louise McKie, Charlotte Jane Lee, Blanche Knapp, Willie Brooks and Dorothy Thyn. Kathryn will carry a beautiful bouquet of orchids, pink roses and lilies of the valley, the gift of friends of the sewing club of her mother, Mrs. William Williams, is a member. The do-are Mesdames Ward Wight, and Chapman, Harry Indell, Groves, Morton Campbell, Feeny, Eugene Thornton A. O. Mitchell.

GLIMPSED here and there: Mrs. Eugene Haynes becoming dressed in a gown of shimmering silver sequins with a bag to match and looking very stunning at a recent Saturday evening dinner-dance at the Driving Club. Vivacious Mrs. Robert Martin, down from Tate Mountain to do her Christmas shopping, and wearing a jaunty hat trimmed with two iridescent butterflies. Jane and John Grudup arriving in Atlanta late Sunday evening after a delightful honeymoon cruise to Havana, Cuba. This is the first time that the bride, a lovely brunet and the former Jane Toms, of Salisbury, N. C., has ever been to Atlanta. The young couple will reside at 2071 Pinetree drive and will be attractive additions to Atlanta's young married contingent.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, Sunday.—I had the most beautiful drive along the River road yesterday and enjoyed every minute of it. Certainly these two days have been the most perfect early winter weather. A little after 5 I had tea with my mother-in-law at the big house and she and I sat before the fire and caught up on all the family news. She is planning to come to Washington for a long stay over the Christmas vacation and I hope Mrs. J. R. Roosevelt will come with her.

Since we can have only two of our grandchildren, Sara and Kate, who live in Washington, with us this year, we must try to draw in as many of the older members of the family and friends as we can. The President's mother asked me again:

"Is there any chance that Anna and John and their children, and Elliott and Ruth and their children will be with us?"

Seattle and Fort Worth are far away and we cannot expect them very often. I could see that she hated to admit the family could not be gathered no matter where they were. She should be accustomed to this, however, for in her background there were years and years which her father spent in China with and without his family.

Her family was a big family, some 11 children, if I remember correctly, so I suppose they did not concern themselves about going to older members of their family or gathering the grandchildren as they grew up. In any case, being New Englanders, Thanksgiving was more the time for family gatherings.

I was very busy this morning organizing our Christmas party up here, as I can only get back here on the evening of the 18th, when the first celebration will already have begun. I love all the hustle and bustle and mysterious wrapping up of packages which is the prelude of every Christmas and I am enjoying myself very much.

I was amused by Doctor Tonsor's advice to parents in today's papers. He is the principal of a New York city high school and he advises mothers who want to make their sons stop smoking, to stop smoking themselves. If we grown-ups were always well disciplined and obedient, our children would be more apt to submit to our authority. Since we must learn to discipline ourselves sooner or later, it seems to me it is well to begin young.

Your Figure, Madam

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

ROUGH TREATMENT MAKES A FINE SKIN.

Not one woman in 100 knows how to wash her face properly! That is the observation of J. Howard Crum, who is a doctor and an authority on beauty, and who places the blame for most of our skin troubles on this failure to thoroughly cleanse the face.

If you have a complexion complaint you will want to give more thought to this business of face washing, for it comes first in Dr. Crum's beauty prescription. Also, you must abandon any deep-rooted ideas that you must treat your skin very gently, for this medical authority advises rough measures and persistence in their practice to produce a skin that is smooth textured and young.

Cold cream, of course, is indispensable, but so is the old-fashioned combination of soap and water, and you are encouraged to wash your face with soap and water at least once a day. Here is the way Dr. Crum advises you to do it: Begin with lukewarm water to relax the tissues of the face and neck. Do not at first use soap, but slap the warm water over the face and neck with the hands. As soon as the tissues feel very relaxed, let the hot water tap run until the water in the basin is as hot as you can tolerate it.

That's mild enough treatment, but there is more to come! You are now ready for the soap and the scrubbing. A washcloth will do for this purpose, but if you really want to change your skin you will use a pumice or complexion stone to stimulate the circulation and the growth of new cells. Dip the stone into the water and, after the face has been washed thoroughly once, rather it again and rub the latter very gently into the skin with the stone. Stop using the stone as soon as a faint blush appears on the skin. You should use the stone at night before retiring, and not often than every other night.

After you have scrubbed your face with the cloth or stone remove the latter and then, when it is free from soap, change quickly to cold water and chill the tissues as quickly as possible. Dry the face with a rough towel.

As you can see, the underlying principle of this method is the stimulation of the circulation and unrelenting persistence in keeping the skin clean. There are no short cuts to beauty, and this authority says so very frankly.

If you are willing to give your skin the time and care it deserves, however, you will be able to see a gradual but steady improvement. In a year's time you can work miracles.

Pleasant Homes

By ELIZABETH McRAE BOYKIN

THE PRACTICAL APPEAL.

Walls that don't show dirt or children's finger marks.

"My walls have distemper," she wailed. The lady was exaggerating but, nevertheless, dark walls, the sort that aren't deliberately planned by a smart decorator, can present a difficult problem. Not many years ago many English type homes were built with darkish rough plaster walls. We don't think the builders had the esthetic values so much in mind as the fact that such walls are extremely practical, never showing dirt or children's finger marks. But what to do about them if the budget doesn't allow a complete change of wall-view?

But what if our furniture bought to last a lifetime does not exactly fit in a background like that? With the dark tan rough plaster, the ideal type of furniture is Jacobean—heavy, sturdy oak that dignifies the dark walls. But with a heterogeneous group of furniture, it is still possible to achieve a pleasant, warm room, even if the walls are darkly forbidding. Brilliant Contrast. The rug should have brilliance.

Use a bright Turkish type oriental, a modern rug or a twist weave broadloom in warm vibrant color. Or polish the floor to shining splendor and use bright throw rugs. The sombre walls won't matter if the floor is gleaming. Windows should be treated simply, yet colorfully. Try stripes—clear greens with pale rust, bright blues with deep duobrown—in simply tailored draw-type draperies and with no glass curtains, of course. Deck your windows with gardens in groups of cacti and succulents to reflect the hardy strength of the room are nice or pottery pots of less usual varieties of ivy.

Furniture can be pulled together with slip covers; a rough textured tweedy material in neutral-toned stripes might be the thing for the sofa, while incisive tones of the colors used in the draperies could be picked out for upholstered chairs. Season with ceramics and get as many highlights in the rooms as possible. Perhaps a huge green bottle standing in one corner will catch the light from the hall and drag it by its heels into the room.

If one of two pieces of furniture can be added try a long, low oak table in front of the fireplace or a sturdy, straight-backed Jacobean arm chair.

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

NERVOUS EXHAUSTION AND BRAIN FAG.

Professor Benedict determined by scientific measurement that one-half of a salted peanut or a cracker provides sufficient energy to supply the requirement of a brain doing intense mental work for an hour or more.

Recent observations by physiologists indicate that the most suitable energy or fuel for the nerve cells and brain cells is sugar, carbohydrate; that use of this fuel by the nerve cells and brain cells produces more or less lactic acid as a by-product; and that this acid by-product of metabolism or functioning of nerves and brain, comparatively small though it be in quantity (compared, that is, with the lactic acid produced by muscular exercise, play or work), accounts for nerve fatigue or brain fag.

Have another piece of candy or a sundae, ma'am, and pipe down on your exacting domestic and social cares.

More oxygen, to oxidize or burn up the lactic acid, is the antidote or remedy for nervous fatigue or brain fag.

What, belly breathing? Well, that would help in many cases. But, as we have pointed out repeatedly, you can't hoist yourself by lifting on your own bootstraps. The belly breathing exercise increases the absorption of oxygen only a wee bit—as much as any other muscular exercise of similar degree and duration does. General exercise is the best way to increase the absorption of oxygen. Two miles of oxygen on the hoof is an excellent remedy for nervous fatigue or brain fag—a better remedy than sitting or lying at rest or sleeping. If the big shots in the business, industrial and professional worlds and the women who become too deeply engrossed in domestic and social interests had to do three to six miles on the hoof every day, we'd hear a great deal less about nervous exhaustion and nervous breakdown—both misleading terms.

Physiologists have for many years assumed the existence of a catalyst in the blood and tissues which governs or controls oxidation. The amount of oxidation going on in the cells or tissues does not depend on the quantity of oxygen absorbed, or on the quantity in the blood. The nature of this catalyst or enzyme is not clearly determined, but most physiologists at present recognize that some such agent is essential for normal oxidation.

Forgive me for interjecting here the crazy notion (my own) that vitamins may have something to do with the oxidation process, especially vitamin B. Certainly vitamin B is essential for the normal metabolism of carbohydrate. Many readers have informed me that a few months after they have adopted the practice of supplementing their diet with a daily ration of vitamins B, G and D they no longer feel the nervous fatigue, brain fag or weakness that formerly handicapped them.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Well Water.
Two cases of typhoid fever in our family. No other known cases in this community. We live on a farm. Local physician and health officer came and looked but found no apparent fault. We drink water from a well which is cased only six or eight feet down. Where can we have this water tested? (W. O. T.)

Answer.—Bacteriological analysis of water would cost $50 or more if done by private laboratory. There is any reason for suspecting the water may be polluted the local physician and health officer can arrange to have the analysis made by the state health department free of charge. More likely the two patients were infected by a human typhoid carrier.

Shingles.

I have what they tell me is shingles. Is there any foundation for the belief that shingles will prove fatal if it goes entirely around the body? At present it seems to cover an area twice the size of my hand on my side. (Mrs. T. E. W.)

Answer.—No. Send stamped envelope bearing your address, for monograph on shingles (herpes zoster).

Pinworms.
Years ago infestation with pinworms was common. Today we seldom hear of it. Is it because people have now more sanitary surroundings now? (T. E.)

Answer.—Recent examination of 1,272 individuals living in or about Washington, D. C., half of them of the general population group, the rest children in institutions, showed that 222 of the 628 persons of the general group had pinworms.

LET FORTUNE TELLING HELP YOU TO HAVE MORE FUN THIS WINTER

EASY TO LEARN WHAT THE CARDS MEAN.

Who can resist having his fortune told? Nobody. And there's a tip for you!

To make yourself more irresistible, learn some of the simple ways to tell fortunes and spin a lively tale of love and luck over the cards and teacups.

One of the most exciting and easiest ways to tell card fortunes is the Seraphina. First pick your court card according to sex and coloring. If you're a blonde girl you're a Queen of Diamonds and that card stands for you.

Then shuffle the deck, cut three times. Make a fan of the cards and, with your left hand, select eight, no two adjoining. Group these around your court card as the diagram shows. Number 1 is your immediate future; 2, the present; 3, 5 and 7, the past; 6, 4 and 8, the distant future.

Suppose the Number 1 card is an 8 of Hearts. That means you will have more beaux soon. Number 2 is a 9 of Diamonds, a fine gift's on the way. If Number 8's a 3 of Spades, some time the future you'll weep some my lady.

At a party make a hit by fortune-telling stunts. Simple but effective. Set the crocheting pencils, then by points tell their personalities. Extra long point—extra long lead—but no point emotional.

Do tea leaves fascinate you? You see a birdlike group of near the cup handle, good news coming.

If you've an open fire, for signs in the embers. A means an engagement's in the air. From our 40-page booklet, ME TELL YOUR FORTUNE, you can quickly learn many fascinating ways to tell fortunes. C tea leaves, dreams, numbers, gypsy secrets. Endless entertainment for you and your friends.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.
Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:
Married at 15, mother of two children at 20, divorced and remarried at 22, I have lived a full life. My present husband is 32 years older than I but we are congenial and happy. My two children live with their father and his second wife for nine months of the year and they are devoted to the stepmother as well as their father, so I don't have to worry about them. My husband's children, all but the youngest, who makes his home with us; but only one of the three is able to support himself and family. They dislike me as they say I married their Dad for what he had, although I have economized to give them help. Their father was in bad financial shape when I married him and what with borrowing to help them live and borrowing more to pay their hospital bills we are deeply in debt.

I see no way out for us but for me to go to work and help clear up our indebtedness. In fact, I have made all arrangements for a position, yet my husband is terribly opposed to the idea and says he isn't going to have people say that his wife has to work to take care of his boys. What am I to do? What is the sensible course for me?
MRS. J. C. W.

ANSWER:

This, my good woman, is no time for high flown sentiment on the part of your husband and for the obvious reason that only those who can support such sentiment are entitled to indulge it. It sounds very chivalrous for a man to say he won't permit his wife to work. But where's the cash to finance his chivalry? So long as he is in debt to doctors, merchants, landlords and money lenders, his first obligation is to pay his debts, and if he can't, then he shouldn't let false pride keep his wife from working to pay them.

But even before this, why should a man be responsible for a crowd of irresponsible sons who got married before they could support their wives and then brought children into the world before they could pay the bills of birth? What's wrong with the wives of those sons getting jobs and cleaning up their bills? The sons will never get on their feet so long as your husband underpins them and he is doing them a great injustice in relieving them of responsibilities which they assumed and should carry. Above all this, a man's first obligation is to his wife rather than to adult children and when he jeopardizes her future to perpetuate his children, somebody should take a hand.

In view of these facts I recommend that you speak quite frankly to your husband and tell him that if he is willing to let the boys shift for themselves in the future, use his money to pay off your indebtedness and incur no further obligations for children and grandchildren, you are quite willing to defer to his wishes, remain at home and live on his salary. But if he feels it incumbent upon him to continue passing out the cash to his children, you will have no alternative but to go to work to protect your own future.

These people who owe bills and don't strain every nerve to pay them haven't real pride, whatever high sounding title they may do. I should think an honest man would be less humiliated at having his wife go to work than he would be at dead-heading and dead-beating on creditors who had trusted him and counted on his coming through.

Georgia Athletic Board Acts Today on Mehre's Resignation

A GUEST COLUMN

By Jake Wade

Editor's Note: In the absence of Ralph McGill, today's guest column is written by Jake Wade, sports editor of the Charlotte Observer.

Never a dull moment in our league, Ralph. Year after year things happen—or about to happen. Mostly about.

In 1933 you accompany the Blue Devils of Duke to Atlanta to see them take the Yellow Jackets to the cleaners, so they can go to the Rose Bowl. An All-American tackle plunges off-side on a crucial play, a Duke touchdown is called back, the Yellow Jackets win.

In 1934 you trip blithely over to Durham to see the North Carolina Tarheels wipe out the Duke Blue Devils and win a Rose Bowl trip. The Duke almost blast the Rose Bowl hungry Tarheels out of the park.

In 1936 you blow the trumpet long and loudly for the Dukes. This year they are the goods. They have all the earmarks. And again there is the scent of roses in tobacco-infested Durham. A Southeastern conference back by the name of Red Harp of Tennessee goes a-winging, hauls back a punt 78 yards for a touchdown and runs Duke right out of another prospective Rose Bowl engagement to a nice shady spot in right field.

Never a dull moment in these parts.

Duke comes up in 1937 with another team bearing the stamp of greatness. It does no better than tie a Tennessee team that gets kicked all over the map in subsequent games. Over at Chapel Hill a less widely touted team starts off lamely. The Tarheels are tied by a South Carolina club which turns out to be the flop of the conference. Then the Tarheels begin to roll. They beat N. Y. U. They take Tulane apart. They lose to Fordham, but with a break or so they might just as easily have won that one.

Still, it looks like Duke in our state. Duke with its mammoth line and its legend of invincibility—particularly against Carolina. You just can't fancy Carolina beating the Tiptons, the Hackneys, the Brunanskys and the Lipscombs.

So you go to Durham and you see the Tarheels employ a magnificently sweet offensive, a double wingback that is clicking, and they blow smoothly and cleanly as they cut the Dukes down to their size and finally manufacture a 14-6 victory with incredible ease.

Never a dull moment.

STATE'S DOC NEWTON.

No, sir, Ralph, not in this land of Graham plans, Hunk Andersons, Carl Snavelys and assorted vagaries that excite and confuse you.

When the "Hunkadora" was transplanted there was turmoil throughout the commonwealth, a weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth. There was also rejoicing and the setting of matches to bonfires. It depended on which side of the railroad tracks you lived.

Doc Newton went over to State and I want to tell you he has turned in one of the finest coaching jobs our state has witnessed. He has a smooth, well-organized and fine-spirited ball club and last Saturday it gave the Blue Devils of Duke one of the busiest afternoons they have had this semester.

Incidentally, this Eddie Berlinski, State halfback, is as sweet a running ball totter as you'd care to see.

The government almost closed down when Carl Snavely departed from Chapel Hill's cloistered campus. He is really an A-1 coach, Ralph, and the folks feared oblivion for the movement of winning teams he had started at Chapel Hill.

But Ray Wolf, his successor, a square-shooting, regular guy from Texas with no put-on and no doo-dads, took a year to become acquainted with his men and to teach them his complicated offense, and this season he has turned out one of the better football teams of the nation.

I mean, Ralph, we will never know precisely just how good this North Carolina team of 1937 is. It may be the best we've had. It may be the best we will have for some time to come.

And the Graham plan! It has been the most baffling, the most aggravating, the most high-minded and the most tantalizing of all our experiences. Nobody can put their fingers on the Graham plan. Not even the great man—and he really is great—who conceived it!

Never a dull moment in our league.

SOME FOOTBALL PLAYERS.

We've had some football players, Ralph. I mean to say, some football players. We have some this season.

The greatest is Handy Andy Bershak, of Chapel Hill. The lad is polished in all the points of managing the terminal of a football forward wall. He has that extra sense, he has the poise, he has the spirit and determination. When he blocks you, you are hit. When he tackles you, you are sunk. And they just can't keep him out of there when he goes after the ball carriers.

Remember when Pitt played Duke back in 1929? The crash of the stock market that year was mild compared with the wavy poor Dukes (not then by Wallace Wade) crashed. Pitt won by 52-7. At the end the Panthers had their assistant managers and the Duke tuba players in their lineup.

And remember the turbulent days of Chuck Collins! Ah, Ralph, there's never a dull moment in the land of the long lean pine.

CANTON SEEKING BIG 8 ENTRANCE

Canton High, a great basketball center in north Georgia, has applied for membership in the Big Eight basketball league. W. O. Cheney, chief executive of the league said Monday.

Cheney said he was in favor of Canton's admission, but it has been learned that many other schools are not in favor of Canton's entry, since the north Georgia school is reported to have broken several athletic contracts recently.

GRIFFIN HI ENDS GREATEST YEAR

GRIFFIN, Ga., Dec. 6.—Three undefeated and untied teams in the last five years is the record of Coach Dana McLendon, native South Carolinian and former producer of championship teams in Georgia. Griffin High school is first undefeated football squad in history.

McLendon's high-scoring machine ran up 328 points while holding the opposition to 12, in nine games.

Griffin record: 29-0-0. Deaford record: 28-0-0. Griffin 24, Dalton 12. Griffin 24, Bowdon 12. Griffin 24, Gainesville 9. Griffin 24, North Fulton 9. Griffin 24, Newnan 9. Griffin 13, Decatur 6. Griffin 33, Cartersville 9. Griffin 68, Fulton 0.

Only one team scored on Griffin's rugged defense all season. That was Bowdon, which pushed over two touchdowns after Griffin's regulars had scored six touchdowns.

ATHLETIC HEADS SEEKING POWER AT S. E. C. MEET

At Present Only Faculty Members Eligible as Representatives.

S. E. C. May Favor All Bowl Games

When Southeastern conference officials meet this week end at Jackson, Miss., it is expected that recognition will be extended to all bowl games.

A year ago the conference voted to recognize only two—the Rose and Sugar Bowls. But now that Auburn has received permission to play in the Orange Bowl, it appears the conference is right back where it was before action was taken banning all but the two bowl games.

By KENNETH GREGORY, Associated Press Sports Writer.

A proposal to give athletic directors equal voting power with faculty representatives may inject a lot of debate into the proceedings when the Southeastern conference goes into annual session this week.

The conference has always insisted that faculties must be responsible for the conduct of athletics in all institutions. The athletic directors have reached the conclusion they want a hand in affairs.

It was learned today that the directors will hold a meeting on Thursday night, eve of the opening session at Jackson, Miss., and make several recommendations to the conference.

The Southeastern's constitution provides that "a representative must be the executive head of the member institution or an active member of the teaching staff of the institution which he represents. No member of an athletic staff shall be eligible to act as representative."

VOTING POWER ASKED.

It is understood the athletic directors will ask the privilege of attending all conference meetings, with voting power. In their meeting Thursday they are expected to recommend to the conference for more uniform and equitable contracts between institutions covering game receipts, game expenses and complimentary tickets.

The directors want stronger representation in conference affairs, including the selection of meetings, tournaments and the allocation of funds for these purposes.

While this proposal is likely to be the liveliest of those presented, the question of "bowl" games will undoubtedly be injected into the discussion. A year ago the conference voted to recognize only the "Sugar Bowl" and the "Rose Bowl" games, with its teams being allowed to accept invitations only to these classes.

"BOWL" TIEUPS. Some athletic directors have been reported as ready to support a move to have the conference enter into a tie-up with the "Sugar Bowl" and have its championship play in that post-season game annually. It is doubtful that action will be taken on this question.

For years some schools have complained on inability to schedule football games with conference teams. While it is believed that nothing definite may come of it at this meeting, it was learned that something will be initiated toward the willingness of conference members to schedule an adequate number of games within the conference.

A proposal will ask that freshman football teams be allowed to play more than the present number of two games. A similar proposal to increase the number to four was rejected a year ago. No talk has been heard of increasing the conference membership.

Akron Adonis On Speer's Show

When President Roosevelt assumed office in 1932 and immediately declared a national bank holiday, he had a hand in causing Ed Meske, a strapping 6-foot-2, 220-pounder from Wittenberg College, to turn wrestler.

Meske, who meets Wee Willie Davis in the semi-final to the Joe Cox-Wally Dusek headliner at the Atlanta theater Thursday night, was a salesman for check protectors. And when the banks closed, checks were worthless and his sales amounted to exactly nothing.

Young Meske, now called the Akron Adonis, because of his good looks and fine physique, hied himself off to a wrestling teacher and the rest is history. He learned so fast that in no time he won the Ohio championship, a title which he still holds. Today, at 27, Meske is ranked as a championship contender. His barrel-roll is a sensational hold. He'll need all his skill, however, to combat the huge Davis, who, despite a bad injury at the hands of Joe Cox last week, is back on the firing line if nothing had happened.

The opening event will pair off Jim Coffield, New York, and Mike Strelch, Utah.

Seven Good Reasons Why Alabama Is Going to the Rose Bowl

The above layout shows seven outstanding members of the undefeated, untied Crimson Tide of Alabama, who will oppose California in the Rose Bowl classic New Year's Day at Pasadena. Moseley is the team's outstanding kicker. Kilgrow, a triple-threat back, and Monsky and Ryba have made several of the many All-American teams this year. Kilgrow, Captain Monsky and Ryba are seniors. The remainder of the squad will be back next year.

BROWN

Atlanta Boxer, Almost Certain To Meet Steele at Miami.

By THAD HOLT.

A low mumbleing sound came over the telephone. There is a bit of Indian in me if my Uncle Rosie's red nose means what he says it means, so by placing the phone on the floor and my frost bitten ear very close against it, I was able to ascertain that the strange noise was the voice of a human being—Sam Sobel, manager of Ben Brown, the flashy Atlanta middleweight, who has won five of his last six bouts by knockouts. There could be only one voice like that. It had to belong to Cigar-Chewing Sam.

Sobel, who is back in Atlanta with his fighter for the Christmas holidays, talked and talked and our ear set was able to pick up some of his conversation, which ran thusly:

"Hello Tad... say me and Brown is back in town for the holidays. De people in Miami is sure crazy for my Ben... (mumble, mumble, mumble) where you get dees cold weather, don't it? ... bet you don't know sumthin', no? ... well, listen (more mumbleing) ... and it looks for sure like Ben and Freddie Steele gonna fight in Miami sometime like February 3... whatta you tink? ... Damon Runyon promoting big charity show at Miami and say Ben and Steele for sure... the fella sure is fighting swell now... he can't do his stuff before home town folks like before foreigners, catch... maybe Ben fight once in Atlanta before Steele fight... (mumble, mumble) ... I wish I stay Miami this weather no quit... what's that you say-busy? ... I no busy... Oh, you busy... well so long."

Seriously, Ben Brown has done a swell job of fighting in recent months and has forged near the top of the middleweight class. Thus far he has had a home-town complex, being unable to show as much here as in other cities. However, Ben's record speaks for itself. If he fights Steele he should have a real chance.

Sobel is no Jack Kearns, but he seems to be doing all right for his fighter and himself.

Auburn Accepts Bid To Orange Bowl Tilt

Tigers Get S. E. C. Permission To Play Michigan State at Miami January 1.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Auburn will play Michigan State in the Orange Bowl football game here New Year's Day, it was announced tonight.

Auburn accepted the Orange Bowl invitation after receiving telegraphic permission from the other Southeastern conference schools.

The Auburn team won five, lost two and tied three games this season. The Plainsmen trounced Birmingham-Southern, 19-0; Mississippi State, 33-7; Georgia Tech, 21-0; Tennessee, 20-7, and Florida, 14-0. They lost to Rice, 13-7, and Louisiana State, 9-7, and played scoreless ties with Tulane, Villanova and Georgia.

Both Orange Bowl teams are coached by Notre Dame graduates, Jack Meagher of Auburn and Charley Bachman of Michigan State.

Bachman, a former University of Florida coach, produced his greatest Michigan State team this season, an eleven which lost only to Manhattan, 3-0, and scored eight victories.

Auburn, considered one of the south's strongest teams, was a victim of poor luck in several games. Halfback Henry Kelly stumbled on L. S. U.'s 20-yard line after returning a punt 56 yards in the last quarter. The Plainsmen were stopped on Villanova's 3-inch line by the half-time whistle in that tie and had a touchdown nullified by a penalty in the Georgia deadlock.

The story of Auburn's bid to the Orange Bowl and the fact that school officials would seek conference approval of the game with Michigan State at Miami on New Year's Day, was announced exclusively in The Constitution Monday morning.

Alex McColl Seen As Americus Pilot

AMERICUS, Ga., Dec. 6.—(AP)—W. T. Anderson, president of the Americus baseball club, in the Georgia-Florida league, said today a working agreement between his outfit and the Washington Senators of the American league for 1938 was effected at the annual meeting of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues in Milwaukee.

Alex McColl probably will be playing manager of the Americus Cardinals, Anderson said, although the veteran hurler has not yet signed.

Should McColl be signed, Guy Lacy, who favorably impressed club officials as pilot last season, would be given his release, it was said. Lacy probably would be re-employed, it was indicated, were it not for the desire of Clarke Griffith, of the Senators, to place McColl here.

Bill Hartman May Play Center

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 6.—The center problem was Coach Harry Mehre's chief worry today as he groomed his team for the finale with Miami University in Miami Friday night.

Both Quinton Lumpkin and Buddy Milner were still hampered by injuries. It was believed that Lumpkin would see some service, however. Coach Mehre considered shifting one of the backfield men to center for the game. Bill Hartman, who has performed at quarterback, fullback and left halfback this season, may fill the bill.

Only about ten minutes were spent on the field. Finding it too uncomfortable, Mehre sent the boys up to Memorial hall gym, where they ran through plays for an hour. A lecture preceded the drill.

COACHES NAME N. G. I. C. ELEVEN

GRIFFIN, Ga., Dec. 6.—All-North Georgia interscholastic conference football team, as picked by the coaches, was announced Monday afternoon by the Griffin News, which conducted the poll of the coaches. The pick showed Griffin High school with three; Spalding, Decatur and Marietta with two players each. Commercial and Gainesville each placed one man.

Player—Lewis, Griffin; Tackle—Hubbard, Marietta; End—Bishop, Griffin; Guard—Adams, Marietta; Quarterback—Ragsdale, Griffin; Fullback—Boggs, Decatur; Halfback—Kearney, Decatur; Tackle—Wright, Decatur; End—Wallace, Spalding; Fullback—Sheppard, Decatur; Quarterback—Struss, Decatur; Halfback—Davis, Marietta; Fullback—Jones, Griffin; Tackle—Bradford, Commercial; End—Sheppard, Decatur, tied for center.

NO SUCCESSOR BEING SOUGHT OFFICIALS

Coach Appears Since Severing Relations With Bulldogs.

By JACK TROY.

Members of the athletic department of the University of Georgia met at Athens at 5 this afternoon, officially upon the resignation of Harry Mehre.

Professor W. O. Payne, director of athletics, said yesterday long-distance that "Coach Mehre appears sincere in his desire sever connections with the university."

"I do not know what the board will take. The is left entirely in their hands can say positively, however no offers have been extended other coaches."

"No such action logically be taken until the board has upon Coach Mehre's resignation declared. 'No one is authorized to act and I can say for dent Harmon Caldwell and that to our knowledge no has been approached. We of course, be in a position to know.'"

RUMORS UNFOUNDED. Rumors have been current several prominent coaches been offered the head coach but Professor Payne's statement logically and conclusively these to rest.

The whole matter is shrouded in mystery. All members of Georgia football team have mentioned Coach Mehre to their decision.

But no one knows except Mehre and possibly a confidant whether or not he would consider. And no one except members of the board knows action they will take.

Anything one might write the situation would be pure speculation.

GREAT COMEBACKS. Coach Mehre has been a victim of circumstance or less of injuries were ruinous in the two seasons. Despite losses of men, however, the Bulldogs great comebacks in both years.

When the material was good and things were not happening to make the team—this to say, when the key men were dropping out along the way because of injuries—Georgia it tough for all concerned.

No other team besides Georgia.

INSTALLMENT II.

"That is right," Jim agreed hastily. "He finished it last year. But he skip the middle. Now he go back."

"And Madame Lisle—how is her voice?" Elsa asked.

Jim kissed the tips of his fingers. "She sing like a lark," he said. "Now—"

"Why, I heard she had lost her voice," Elsa protested.

Jim shook his head impatiently. "She lose it—she come back—she lose it again—it come back," he explained impatiently. Then he handed the book and pencil to Elsa. "Maybe you should have these," he said. Elsa laughed delightedly.

"Now we commence," Jim said. "You are married—no?"

Elsa shook her head. "No."

"Why are you not married?" Jim demanded.

"Nobody's asked me."

"Pout!" Jim waved this explanation away. "You are beautiful, you are young, you are rich," Jim wrote in his notebook and read aloud as he wrote: "She is not happy. She is afraid of love."

Elsa smiled at Jim. "Couldn't we stick more closely to music?" she asked.

"Make out," Jim replied. "You sing in Paris next month?"

Elsa nodded. "And when do you leave for Buenos Aires?" he continued.

"Buenos Aires?" Elsa asked. "I'm not going there. That was called off."

At that moment the maid ushered a photographer into the room. "I'm a photographer for Mr. Ginard," he explained. Jim turned to him and the photographer looked at him in surprise. "Hey!" he said. "You're not Mr. Ginard."

"Would you mind waiting in the next room?" Elsa said hastily. When he withdrew she turned to Jim. "Well?" she demanded.

"I—I'm Jim Guthrie," he explained. "I had to meet you."

"Would you mind telling me where you're concealing the real Ginard?" Elsa continued with mock severity.

"He—he's in my apartment across the hall," Jim said.

Elsa started for the door. "Then we mustn't keep him waiting," she said.

In Jim's apartment she greeted the real Ginard effusively. "How is your charming wife?" she asked. "And the little boy?" Jim took them to the bar and while Pancho mixed drinks they listened to Elsa's reminiscences of opera. It had become a jolly threesome when the door was suddenly opened and Madame Della scowled at them.

"Elsa!" she thundered. Jim turned quickly and crossed to her. "It can't be—but it is! It is Madame Della. How long I've waited for this moment!" He took her by the arm. "Come," he said, "I've something to show you."

He piloted her to a small adjoining room. "If my father were only alive for this moment," he said as he threw open the door to the room. "Look!"

Madella looked at a room whose walls were covered with portraits of herself in various operatic roles. "Where did you get these?" Madella demanded.

"They belonged to my father," Jim said reverently. "His name was John Guthrie."

"Never heard of him," Madella said.

"Why, Bill!" Elsa held out her hand and smiled. "This is Mr. Guthrie. Jim, this is Bill Kane, my manager." Jim rose and bowed. Kane acknowledged the introduction and then turned to Elsa.

"I've been trying frantically to get you on the phone all day," he said. "Buenos Aires was on the phone this morning. They're willing to match the Paris offer and give you a bonus. That if, if you can sail on the 'Orinoco' Saturday night."

Elsa laughed and shook her head. Jim looked up suddenly, as though he had been inattentive. "The 'Orinoco'?" he said. "I'm sailing on the 'Orinoco' Saturday."

Elsa looked up quickly. "You are?" she asked.

Jim went right on enthusiastically. "Of course. I live in Buenos Aires. This is wonderful. I don't want to interfere in your business but—the thought of you—in Buenos Aires—"

Elsa was obviously excited at the prospect, too, but she shook her head again. "It's impossible," she said. "I'm sailing for Paris Saturday night."

Jim waved his hand impatiently. "Change your passage tonight," he said. "What do you care where you sail to? I promise you an experience you'll never forget. My hacienda will be yours. My queros will serenade you—songs of the pampas and—er—serenade you with all the war and passion of the Argentine hope."

Elsa spoke softly and there was a light in her eyes. "You very persuasive," she said. "You sure you want me to go much?"

"More than anything in the world," Jim replied fervently.

Kane smiled at Jim. "If goes through, Guthrie," he said. "I ought to split my commission with you."

"Just having Elsa there will my reward," Jim replied. He turned to Elsa. "I'll even give you sample so you'll know what you're getting."

"A sample?" Elsa looked at him in bewilderment.

"Yes. Have dinner with me the apartment tomorrow night. Give you a preview of the package."

Elsa laughed. "It's a date."

"And I'll tell you after preview whether I'll take the thing."

The next night Elsa took particular care in dressing. "Do I look all right, Margot?" she asked.

Margot gazed at her admiringly. "You look downright sinful," she said.

"How would you like to go to Buenos Aires?" Elsa asked.

Margot shrugged. "What's the difference?" she asked. "As long as you've decided to go there, I'm glad you did, though," she said tenderly.

Elsa crossed the hall of Jim's apartment and discovered that the door was ajar. She paused when she heard Jim's voice.

"I won't go to Buenos Aires without her," Jim said. "I can give her a few drinks at dinner and she'll be all right."

Elsa listened and tears of happiness came to her eyes. Pancho came through the door and said, "Just how do you expect to away with this?" Pancho asked.

"The 'Orinoco' and her boat to Europe both sail at midnight," Jim explained. "I'll just put her on the wrong boat."

"But that's kidnapping!" Pancho protested. "You'll never get away with it."

"Yes I can," Jim replied. "It means too much to me to fail. I'll give her a few drinks at dinner and she'll be all right. I'll stall until the last minute and then rush her on the boat so fast she won't even know where she's heading."

"I know where you're heading," Pancho said severely. "Right to jail. You're even taking a shot at it."

"And what's more," Jim added, "you're going to help me."

"I had a feeling that you would come up," Pancho said with a sigh. "What do I do?"

"You're taking Margot, her maid, to dinner and putting her in the boat with Elsa."

Elsa tiptoed back to her own apartment. She found Margot tidying up her room. "Margot," she said ecstatically, "we're going to be kidnapped."

Margot looked up threateningly. "I'd like to see anybody try to kidnap me."

THE CITY OF FLORENCE.

Florence, Italy: This city is famed for its art galleries. It contains hundreds of widely known pictures, some of them by artists of the first rank, such as Raphael and Botticelli.

Through Florence runs the Arno river. It is muddy (at least, right now) but is pretty enough when seen from a little distance.

Many other noted people have lived in Florence. Americus Vesputius, Galileo, Michael Angelo and Savonarola at one time or another made their homes here.

Americus Vesputius was an explorer and map-maker. He gave his name to America—that is, to both North and South America. He is the only man for whom any continent was named.

Galileo ranks among the great scientists of all time. He was one of the pioneers in finding that the earth moves around the sun. When he was a feeble old man, he was forced to "take back" his word about the motion of the earth but the truth lived after him.

Savonarola was a great orator who lived in the time of Columbus. He preached things which did not agree with the ideas of his time and was put to death.

The Pitti palace in Florence takes us back to a time when the most powerful people in northern Italy were members of the Medici family. A wealthy man named Luca Pitti decided to build a larger palace than any owned by the Medici.

The palace was started in 1440 but it was on such a grand scale that Pitti did not have enough money to finish it. The only thing he could do was to sell it—and the people who bought it were the Medici!

HIGH COURT RULES U.S. FREE TO RESUME ALUMINUM CASE

Georgia Poll Tax Law Upheld in Opinion by Justice Butler.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The supreme court decided today that the Justice Department is free to resume prosecution in New York of its anti-trust case against the Aluminum Company of America.

In an opinion by Justice McReynolds, the tribunal upheld a decision by a three-judge Philadelphia court declaring the government was within its rights in trying the case in federal district court of southern New York. The trial had been halted by injunction.

Attorney General Cummings, in a formal statement, said the high court's opinion had "severed red tape," and that the Justice Department could now "go ahead with the case."

Representatives of the Aluminum Company declined immediate comment.

The court, convening after a two weeks' recess, announced decisions in 22 cases and issued 38 orders.

Income Levy Upheld.

In a 5-to-4 decision, it held that states have the right to levy gross income taxes against income received by contractors from the federal government for construction work on locks and dams. Justice Hughes read the majority opinion, from which Justices Roberts, Butler, McReynolds and Sutherland dissented.

The tribunal also upheld a Georgia statute forbidding male citizens to vote unless they have paid all accumulated poll taxes. Nolen R. Breedlove, of Atlanta, who challenged the law, contended it was discriminatory because women were required to pay the tax only for the year in which they desired to vote.

Power Is Equal.

The opinion, read by Justice Butler, said imposition of a poll tax without enforcement would be "futile," that "power to levy and power to collect are equally necessary," and that it was "fanciful to suggest that the Georgia law was a mere disguise under which to deny or abridge the right of men to vote because of their sex."

Breedlove argued the tax was discriminatory because it was required of women voters only for the years in which they actually registered, because it applied only

Witnesses Ordered To Take Bible Oath

Judge James C. Davis revived an old custom yesterday in DeKalb superior court, requiring witnesses and jurors to touch the Bible while taking the oath.

"The sacredness and sanctity of the oath should be properly impressed upon all concerned," said Judge Davis, in resuming the court custom of many years ago.

More recently, jurors and witnesses have been sworn en masse.

to persons 21 to 60 years of age, and because it made payment a prerequisite to voting.

Men who have reached 60 years of age, it pointed out, are given various other exemptions, and to levy against minors would place the burden upon their fathers.

LINDYS EXPECTED TO VISIT FAIR SITE

Couple Remains Closely Guarded at Morrow Estate in N. J.

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., Dec. 6.—(UP)—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh plan to visit numerous places in the metropolitan area, including the site of the New York World's Fair, during their holiday stay in this country, friends said today.

They remained at the closely guarded estate of Mrs. Dwight Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's mother, throughout today as near as the general public could ascertain, although there were reports the flyer and his wife slipped away on a trip to New York city.

Two Sons Abroad.

The Lindberghs arrived yesterday on the President Harding from England, where they have made their home for almost two years. Their two sons, Jon and Land, remained abroad.

Spokesmen for the Morrow family would not discuss the length of time the colonel and his wife plan to stay in the United States, but it was assumed they would remain until after the holiday season. Lindbergh, who is technical adviser for Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc., and Pan-American Airways, will have a chance to take care of business in connection with his aviation activities.

Autos Fill Roads.

Telegrams continued to arrive in large numbers at the Morrow estate and the roads were filled with automobiles carrying persons who were curious to see the Lindberghs.

Every truck that went into the estate was stopped by police, who inspected it thoroughly. Most of the trucks carried foodstuffs and Christmas supplies.

TVA 'ROBBED' HIM, SENATOR CHARGES

Perry Doubts Norris Dam Is Valuable as Marble That It Inundated.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Senator George L. Berry accused the Tennessee Valley Authority today of "robbing" him of mineral leases in the Norris Dam reservoir and declared it was doubtful whether the dam was as valuable as the marble that has been inundated.

The statements of Tennessee's junior senator were made at a hearing before a three-man commission appointed to determine the value of leases held by Berry and 29 others seeking damages from the government agency.

Counsel for Berry and his associates declared witnesses would testify the marble alone under the waters of Norris lake was worth more than $3,000,000,000.

The TVA took a divergent view, however, for Evans Dunn, counsel for the authority, told the commissioners "these leases have no market value" and "are not worth the paper they are written on."

"They are of value only in a condemnation case and they are unique in that respect."

This remark incensed the senator, who defended his purchase of the leases and denied vigorously that he bought them with a view to seeking damages from the government.

"I don't have to sue the government to make a living," Berry said, his voice rising. "I've made a living since I was 9 years old and I don't have to change."

Nine Alert Photo-Tipsters Win In The Constitution's Cash Derby

Two in Dead Heat Receive Equal Awards But Grand Prize Goes to Mrs. J. G. Ray for Story on Thirteenth Boone Child.

Nine Photo-Tipsters finished in the money last week in The Constitution's news-picture derby. And it was a thrilling race, with entries speeding toward the cash awards with a variety of telephone tips that became live, interesting news stories and pictures.

In one "event," two alert Photo-Tipsters crossed the finish line in a dead heat, both telephoning The Constitution news room at almost the precise moment.

They were A. S. Colley, of 282 Ponce de Leon avenue, and Mrs. J. E. Hunter, of 222 Spring street, who tipped The Constitution about a mechanical elephant that startled Atlantans' downtown last Thursday afternoon.

Both Mr. Colley and Mrs. Hunter will receive $1 each. Scores of other telephone calls were received about this story, but the rules say the first tipster wins.

$5 To Mrs. J. G. Ray. Speaking of first, the grand prize of $5 was awarded to Mrs. J. G. Ray, of 25 Ruth street, for her tip about the Boone family, in which the thirteenth child was born last week.

The story of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Boone and their large family appeared in The Constitution Sunday.

Mrs. Laura Metcalf, desk clerk at the Atlantan hotel, won a dollar for her tip on the visit here of Major General Ching San Hwang and three other Chinese who had interesting things to say about the Far Eastern situation. A dollar also went to Mrs. Beatrice Chase of the state office of the Home Owners Loan Corporation, 10 Forsyth Street building. It was there last Wednesday that employees in the HOLC office gave a surprise birthday party to little Ruth Reese, seller of chewing gum and candy.

That picture in fast Tuesday's Constitution of Joyce Louise Payne, 2 J-2, and her pet baby squirrels, won for her mother, Mrs. W. O. Payne, of 610 South Church street, East Point, one of the $1 prizes also.

$1 for Puppy Tip. Another $1 was won by James Newberry, of 248 Spring street, who saw a news-picture in the German shepherd puppy which Judge Watkins Sr. gave to Governor Bibb Graves, of Alabama. The dog will be trained to lead a sightless person.

Dr. Thomas M. Elliott, of Rockmart, well-known clergyman, also won a dollar. His tip developed into a good story and picture of the late Mrs. Walter Withers, Atlanta's first baby, who was born in Marietta.

Several tips came to The Constitution about those bicycle riders from Wisconsin, but the calls came after the news had already come into the paper from its regular news-gathering sources. Consequently, no prizes were awarded.

There were two other good Photo-Tips, both of which won $1 prizes. They were about the temperamental cat of Major and Mrs. Charles T. Senay, of 1068 Peachtree street, and the driving ability of Mrs. L. A. Johnson, of 38 Sanders street, 75-year-old motorist.

Addresses of these two tipsters were lost, however, and if the persons who telephoned the tips will communicate with the Photo Tip Editor, checks will be forwarded.

EX-JUDGE HOWARD LOSES PAY FIGHT

State High Court Denies $3,166.65 Claim.

Former Fulton Superior Court Judge C. H. Howard yesterday lost his fight for $3,166.65 back salary as the Georgia supreme court reversed a decision of the Fulton superior court.

The court ruled that the $7,000 salary voted by the county commission in 1929 to supplement the $5,000 paid by the state was not included in the constitutional provision against reducing judges' salaries during their term. Two judges dissented.
